MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark meaning first, then form, then range. An answer is correct if the time relationship is right (earlier / background / duration; real vs unreal; now vs past) and the form is right. Be generous about optional choices: the past perfect is optional after before / after; had worked and had been working are both fine with for + a period for many verbs; contractions (I'd, would've, 'd rather) are always fine; was after I wish I / If only it is fine in speech (were is safer in writing). American English is the model; British forms (got for gotten, travelled, organised, film, flat, flatmate, queue) are acceptable when a learner uses them. In open tasks, reward a correct richer form with a tick and a "B2!" in the margin.

1.1 • NARRATIVE TENSES — PAST PERFECT & CONTINUOUS (C1)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — THE WRONG TRAIN (SCRIPT 1.1-A)

Gist: The speaker got on the express train by mistake (they were reading and didn't hear the announcements).

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
was going	had been looking	was sitting	had gotten	had traveled	had been reading	hadn't heard	had already started

Background (past continuous): 1, 3 • earlier (past perfect): 4, 5, 7, 8 • duration (past perfect continuous): 2, 6. Also accept: 4 had got (British) • 5 had travelled • contractions (I'd been looking). Wrong: 4 "got" (the story needs the earlier event) • 6 "was reading" (possible in another story, but the script has had been reading, which explains the result).

◆ EXERCISE 2 — CHOOSE THE NARRATIVE TENSE

- 1 had already started
- 2 had been working
- 3 was driving

4 had been working (also: had worked: with for 30 years both are natural)

5 hadn't met

6 rang

7 had been walking

8 had eaten

Wrong: 1 "already started" (order unclear) · 2 "has been working" (present perfect inside a past story) · 5 "didn't meet" (acceptable in casual speech, but before that evening calls for the past perfect) · 6 "was ringing" (the ringing interrupts) · 8 "had been eating" (the cookies are all gone: a finished result = simple).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – SIMPLE OR CONTINUOUS?

1 had written (a number: six emails) · 2 had been reading (activity → result: tired eyes) · 3 had known (state verb) · 4 had been cooking (activity since lunchtime; the smell is the result) · 5 had painted (a number: three rooms) · 6 had been waiting (activity → result: wet).

Also accept 6 had waited with a note: correct grammar, but the continuous explains the result better. Never accept 3 "had been knowing."

◆ EXERCISE 4 – SEQUENCING WORDS

1 While (also: As) · 2 By the time · 3 just · 4 until · 5 when · 6 already.

Note on 1: When I was cooking dinner, my brother called is also possible and common in speech; while is the model for the long background action. Note on 2: When is grammatical but loses the "too late" meaning.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FROM FLAT TO LAYERED (OPEN)

Model: By the time I got to work, the meeting had already started. I'd been sitting in traffic for over an hour, and my phone had died, so I couldn't call anyone. When I walked in, my boss was standing by the door, and she didn't look happy.

Check for: one past continuous (background), one past perfect (earlier), one past perfect continuous (duration), one sequencing word, and a story that still makes sense. Many good versions are possible.

◆ DIALOGUE – THE FOUR TENSES

Past simple: happened, went out, came over, knew, came back, was · past continuous: was just finishing, was sitting · past perfect: Had you saved, hadn't saved, you'd lost, she'd already found · past perfect continuous: I'd been working, She'd been having. Any one of each is correct.

◆ SPEAKING – STORY RECONSTRUCTION (SET D)

Story A · The Wedding Cake: C – F – A – H – B – G – E – D. Story B · Locked Out: E – B – G – A – H – C – F – D. Literacy-support short versions (★ strips): A = C · F · B · E · D; B = E · B · A · H · D.

Clues learners should notice: A-C "had been baking since five" is the scene-setter; A-D "By the time they arrived" must come last; B-A "As the door was closing" must follow B-G "ran out of the apartment"; B-H introduces Mrs. Ortiz before

B-C uses "She."

Model retell (A, taxi driver): "I'd been driving since six that morning, and I was waiting at a red light when the van in front of me just died. A woman got out. She'd been driving for twenty minutes with a strange noise in the engine, and she was holding a huge wedding cake! By the time we'd pushed the van to the side of the road, she was nearly crying, so I drove her to the hotel. The guests had already sat down, but the cake was perfect, and I got the first slice." Model retell (B, Mrs. Ortiz): "I was watering my plants when I heard a door slam. The young man next door had been looking forward to his new job for weeks, and he'd just locked himself out! I'd been keeping a spare key for the building manager for years, so I called him. While we were waiting, I made Daniel coffee and a sandwich. He told me later his supervisor had been locked out herself the week before."

◆ SELF - CHECK

Q1

"When I got to the airport, the plane ____." The plane left before I arrived.

A) had already taken off

B) took off

C) was taking off

Why: the past perfect shows the plane left before the story moment. B means I arrived and then it left; C means it was in the middle of leaving.

Q2

"She was exhausted because she ____ all night."

A) had been studying

B) studied

C) has been studying

Why: the past perfect continuous stresses the duration of an activity that explains a past result. C is present perfect: wrong time frame inside a past story.

Q3 · new

Which sentence is correct?

A) I had been knowing him for ten years...

B) I had known him for ten years when we finally met in person.

C) I was knowing him for ten years...

Why: know is a state verb, so it stays in the simple form even with a duration.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (1.1)

"When I arrived, the train already left." (no past perfect) · "Yesterday I had gone to the market." (past perfect for no reason) · "I had been knowing / was knowing her." · "By the time I arrived, the party has finished." (present perfect in a past story) · "She had been wrote three emails." · "While the phone rang, I was cooking." (while / when reversed) · "I was go to work." Correct the missing past perfect when the order is unclear; treat an unnecessary past perfect gently (it isn't wrong, just heavy).

1.2 · THE THIRD CONDITIONAL — PAST HYPOTHETICALS (C2)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE PICNIC THAT WASN'T (SCRIPT 1.2-A)

What really happened (any two): they didn't check the forecast · it rained all afternoon · they didn't bring an umbrella · they got very wet · they went into a café · they met their old friend Leo · they have lunch with him every month now.

- 1 had checked ... wouldn't have planned
- 2 had brought ... wouldn't have gotten
- 3 hadn't gone ... wouldn't have met
- 4 hadn't met ... wouldn't be

Why is 4 different? The result is about now (they are friends again now), so it is a mixed conditional: would + base verb. Also accept: 2 wouldn't have got (British); contractions (If we'd checked). Wrong: 4 "wouldn't have been friends now" (two pasts with now).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – PUT IT IN THE THIRD CONDITIONAL

- 1 had known ... would have bought
- 2 wouldn't have missed ... had set
- 3 had listened ... wouldn't have gotten (British: got)
- 4 would have won ... hadn't made

5 had asked ... would have helped

6 had been ... could have bought

Also correct: contractions (I'd known, I'd have bought, would've); might have in 5 changes the meaning (less sure) but is grammatical. Wrong: "If I would have known" · "would of" · "If I knew" (second conditional) · 6 "could buy."

◆ EXERCISE 3 – SECOND OR THIRD CONDITIONAL?

1	spoke	2nd: I still don't speak it; it can change
2	had saved	3rd: the work is already lost
3	were (also: was in speech)	2nd: unreal present
4	had warned	3rd: unreal past
5	came ... wouldn't need	2nd: a general present situation
6	had come ... wouldn't have missed	3rd: yesterday is finished

◆ EXERCISE 4 – WOULD, COULD OR MIGHT?

1 would (certain) · 2 might (not sure) · 3 could (it was possible) · 4 could (criticism: it was possible and you didn't) · 5 might ("Who knows?" = uncertain).

Note on 3: would is also grammatical (it means "I definitely would have"), but the sentence says "It was possible," so could is the target. In 4, might have called exists as a complaint in British English ("You might have told me!"), but could is the everyday American choice.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – BUILD A MIXED CONDITIONAL

1 If I had learned to drive, I would be (more) independent now.

2 If he were (was) more organized, he wouldn't have forgotten the meeting (yesterday).

3 If Mia hadn't taken a free cooking class (two years ago), she wouldn't run / wouldn't be running a food truck today.

4 If I hadn't stayed up until 2 a.m. (last night), I wouldn't be so tired now.

5 If Sam weren't (wasn't) so shy, he would have spoken at yesterday's meeting.

Types: 1, 3, 4 = past cause → present result (a) · 2, 5 = present trait → past result (b). Other natural phrasings are fine if both time frames are right (e.g. 1 If I'd learned to drive, I wouldn't need rides from my friends now). Also accept learnt, organised. Wrong: "...I would have been independent now" · "If he had been more organized..." in 2 (grammatical as a third conditional, but loses the "always" meaning: mark with a note).

◆ DIALOGUE – FIND THE STRUCTURES

could have criticism: you could have checked the traffic · might have: we might have made it anyway · mixed conditional about now: if we hadn't gotten lost, we wouldn't be sitting in this great little café right now. (Also in the dialogue: pure third conditionals If we hadn't taken the highway, we would've gotten there, If you'd told me..., I would've listened; and a type (b) mixed conditional if I were a bit more assertive, I probably would've insisted.)

◆ SPEAKING – CHAIN OF CONSEQUENCES (SET E) · MODEL CHAIN

Start card 1: Monday, 7 a.m.: Ana's alarm didn't go off. → If Ana's alarm had gone off, she wouldn't have missed the bus. → If she hadn't missed the bus, she wouldn't have walked through the park. → If she hadn't walked through the park, she wouldn't have smelled the tacos from a little food cart. → If she hadn't smelled the tacos, she wouldn't have stopped to buy some. → (ending card: ...runs a food truck today) → If she hadn't stopped, she wouldn't have started talking to the cook, who was looking for a partner. → If he hadn't been looking for a partner, she might never have learned to make tacos. → If Ana hadn't learned to make tacos, she wouldn't be running her own food truck today!

Check each slip: if-half = had / hadn't + pp; result = would / could / might (not) have + pp; the last link = would (not) + base / be + -ing with now / today. The story can be as silly as the group likes.

◆ SMALL TURNING POINTS (OPEN)

Check for: one correct third conditional, one mixed conditional (with now / today / still), one could have / might have. Model: Three years ago a coworker invited me to a salsa class. If she hadn't invited me, I would never have tried dancing. I might have joined a gym instead! If I hadn't gone, I wouldn't have so many new friends now. Don't mark the content, and don't ask for more personal detail.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which sentence is written correctly?

A) If I had seen it, I would have told you.

B) If I had seen it, I would of told you.

C) If I would have seen it, I told you.

Why: if + past perfect, then would have + past participle. B is a spelling error ("of" is how 've sounds); C puts would have in the if-clause.

Q2

"I didn't take the job in Berlin. If I ____ it, I ____ living in Germany now."

A) had taken ... would be

B) had taken ... would have been

C) took ... would be

Why: a past cause (had taken) with a present result (would be... now) = mixed conditional. B uses a past result with now; C makes the cause present.

Q3 · new

Your friend didn't tell you about a big sale. You're annoyed.

A) You could have told me!

B) You could told me!

C) You could of told me!

Why: could have + past participle criticizes something that was possible but didn't happen. B is missing have; C is the "of" spelling error.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (1.2)

"If I would have known, I would help." · "If I knew (yesterday), I would tell you." · "If she hadn't missed the bus, she wouldn't meet him." (second-conditional result for a past) · "If I had taken the job, I would have been rich now." · "I would of / could of..." (writing) · "If I had know..." (wrong participle) · "What you would have done?" Correct would in the if-clause and the missing have every time; treat mixed-conditional slips gently. They are a stretch at B2.

1.3 · PAST REGRETS — WISH, IF ONLY, WOULD RATHER & IT'S TIME (C3)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — THE OFFICE KITCHEN (SCRIPT 1.3-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
had brought · P	would clean · N	had · N	hadn't finished · P	got · N	'd rather · N	we asked · N

Also accept: 1 'd brought · 5 bought (meaning OK) · 7 we went to / we talked to (meaning OK if the verb is past simple). Items 2, 5, 6, 7 are "now / future" even though 5 and 7 use a past form: that is the point of the lesson. Wrong: 5 "gets / get" · 7 "we ask."

◆ EXERCISE 2 — PRESENT WISH OR PAST REGRET?

1 earned (present) · 2 had taken (past regret) · 3 were (present; was is common in speech) · 4 hadn't told (past regret) · 5 could (present) · 6 hadn't missed (past regret) · 7 had brought (past regret: the moment of packing is over) · 8 were / was (present).

Wrong: 1 "would earn" · 5 "can" · 7 "brought" (sounds like a present wish about a general habit) · 8 "is."

◆ EXERCISE 3 – REWRITE WITH I WISH... / IF ONLY...

- 1 I wish I had saved more money.
- 2 I wish I hadn't eaten so much. (also: I wish I'd eaten less.)
- 3 If only we had booked a table.
- 4 I wish I hadn't forgotten her birthday. (also: I wish I'd remembered her birthday.)
- 5 I wish my roommate would close the door.
- 6 I wish it would stop raining.

1–4 must use wish / if only + past perfect; 5–6 use wish + would (annoyance, someone or something else). Also accept 5 I wish my roommate closed the door (a present wish, less annoyed). Contractions are fine. Wrong: "I wish I would have saved..." · 6 "I wish it stopped raining" (grammatical, but it sounds like a general wish, not an annoyed one: mark with a note).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – WOULD RATHER OR IT'S TIME?

1 walk (same subject → base verb) · 2 didn't park (different subject → past simple) · 3 did · 4 went (also: left) · 5 called · 6 talk · 7 to start (no subject → to + base).

Wrong: 1 "to walk" · 2 "don't park / not park" · 3 "does / do" · 4 "go" · 7 "we started" is correct grammar if a learner adds a subject (It's time we started the meeting): accept it.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FIND THE MISTAKE

- 1 I wish I slept earlier. / I wish I could sleep earlier. / I wish I went to bed earlier. (no wish + would about yourself)
- 2 It's time we left. (or: It's time to leave.)
- 3 I'd rather you didn't go.
- 4 I wish I had studied.
- 5 I'd rather stay home tonight. (or: I'd prefer to stay...)
- 6 I hope you pass your driving test! (possible → hope; also I hope you'll pass)

◆ DIALOGUE – TOM'S THREE WISHES

About the past: I wish I hadn't stayed up so late (also If only I'd started it on Monday). A complaint about someone else: I wish my manager wouldn't give me things at the last minute. (The third, I wish I had more free weekends, is a present wish.)

◆ SPEAKING – WOULD YOU RATHER? & WISH LIST MEETING (OPEN)

Listen for: I'd rather + base + than + base (not "than to"); I'd rather you + past simple in the follow-up; the meeting targets (2 present wishes, 1 regret with hadn't / had + pp, It's high time + past, I'd rather they + past, a polite disagreement). Model report (scenario A): "We wish the elevator worked properly. It's high time the owner fixed it. We wish they hadn't moved the trash cans to the back, and we'd rather people didn't do laundry after 10 p.m. So our top three are: fix the elevator, move the trash cans back, and quiet hours after ten."

◆ MY WISHES & PREFERENCES (OPEN)

Check each ticked structure: tense after wish matches the time; would rather + base (same subject) or + past (different subject); it's (high) time + subject + past or to + base. Mark the grammar only. Don't comment on how serious or personal the content is, and never ask for more.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

You didn't apply for the scholarship, and now you regret it.

A) I wish I had applied for the scholarship.

B) I wish I applied for the scholarship.

C) I wish I would apply for the scholarship.

Why: a regret about a finished past event = wish + past perfect. B is a present wish; C is wish + would about yourself.

Q2

"It's high time you ___ the dishes."

A) washed

B) wash

C) had washed

Why: it's (high) time + subject + past simple, with a present / future meaning. The past perfect isn't used after it's time.

Q3 · new

Your neighbor plays loud music every night.

A) I'd rather you didn't play your music so loud at night.

B) I'd rather you don't play your music so loud at night.

C) I'd rather you not to play your music so loud at night.

Why: would rather + a different subject + past simple (a present / future meaning). B is very common in casual speech but is not standard; C mixes in to.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (1.3)

"I wish I would exercise more." · "I wish you will pass." (for hope) · "I wish I had spoken French." (meaning now) · "I'd rather you don't..." · "It's time we go." · "I'd rather to stay." · "I rather walk." (missing 'd) · "I wish I would have known." Correct the wish / hope mix-up and the now / past mix-up every time (they change the meaning); treat "I'd rather you don't" gently in speech, but correct it in writing.

DICTATIONS (SET I)

◆ ANSWERS ARE THE SCRIPTS THEMSELVES

1.1-B: 1. By the time we got to the station, the last train had already left. · 2. She was reading quietly when the lights suddenly went out. · 3. They'd been driving for hours before they found a place to stop. · 4. I recognized him at once because we'd met before. 1.2-B: 1. If I'd known, I would've called you. · 2. She wouldn't have missed the bus if she'd left earlier. · 3. If we hadn't gotten lost, we wouldn't be here now. · 4. You could have told me! 1.3-B: 1. I wish I hadn't eaten so much cake. · 2. I'd rather you didn't call after ten. · 3. It's high time they fixed the elevator. · 4. I wish it would stop raining.

Mark contracted and full forms as equal (I'd known = I had known). The most common dictation errors: missing 'd (1.1-B 3, 1.2-B 1), "would of" (1.2-B 1), and "recognised" (fine).

Module 2 — Verb Patterns & Modality: Answers

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark meaning first, then form, but hold learners to the form that changes the meaning: stopped to buy vs stopped buying, must have vs can't have, used to vs be used to. Be generous about genuine alternatives: might / may / could have are interchangeable for possibility; can't have and couldn't have are both correct; like / love / hate / start take either form; contractions (must've, I'm, 've) are fine; American I've gotten used to and British I've got used to are both correct. American English is the model; British spellings and words (apologise, practise, flat, cinema, at the weekend) are acceptable when a learner uses them.

2.1 • GERUNDS & INFINITIVES (C4)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – KAI'S NEW ROUTINE (SCRIPT 2.1-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
to change	staying	to be	to clear	getting	joining	meeting	buying	to charge

Why: 1 decide + to · 2 stop + -ing = quit the habit · 3 try + to = make an effort · 4 purpose · 5 hate takes either form: also accept to get · 6 preposition about · 7 look forward to (preposition) · 8 avoid + -ing · 9 remember + to = a duty. Wrong: 3 "trying being" · 4 "for clearing" · 7 "to meet."

◆ EXERCISE 2 – -ING OR TO?

1 cooking · 2 to study · 3 solving (preposition at) · 4 to buy · 5 seeing (to is a preposition here) · 6 apologize (bare infinitive after make) · 7 closing · 8 to pay · 9 helping (committed to + noun works, so to is a preposition) · 10 to explain (adjective + to).

Also accept apologise (British spelling). Wrong: 6 "to apologize" (the most common error: no to after make + person) · 9 "to help" (very common, even among advanced learners: mark it, but explain gently).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – WHICH MEANING?

1 b (Remember to meet him = a duty) · 2 b (tried to = an attempt that failed) · 3 a (forget seeing = a memory) · 4 b (regret to inform = bad news now, formal) · 5 b (went on to = moved to a new activity) · 6 b (meant to = intended) · 7 a (stopped to get gas = paused in order to).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – ERROR HUNT

- 1 ✗ I'm looking forward to seeing you on Friday.
- 2 ✗ She suggested taking a taxi. (or: She suggested that we take a taxi.)
- 3 ✗ We went to the store to buy some bread.
- 4 ✓ correct (let + person + base verb)
- 5 ✗ Learning a language takes time. (The infinitive is possible but stiff and formal; the gerund is the natural subject.)
- 6 ✓ correct (preposition about + -ing)
- 7 ✗ They made us wait for an hour.
- 8 ✗ I want you to call me tomorrow.
- 9 ✓ correct
- 10 ✗ She's good at cooking. (The gerund was right; the preposition was wrong.)
- 11 ✗ I don't mind working on Saturdays.
- 12 ✓ correct (would like + to)

8 wrong, 4 correct. If learners use this as the test in C4, count how many of the 12 each pair got right; most classes score 6–8 before the lesson.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – BUILD THE SENTENCE

1 Instead of giving up · 2 to borrow a book · 3 interested in volunteering · 4 to see better · 5 to travel next year · 6 without saying a word.

Also accept: 2 and 4 in order to borrow / so as to see (more formal). Wrong: 2 "for borrowing" · 3 "interested to volunteer" (possible in a different meaning, "curious to," but not the target here) · 5 "for traveling."

◆ DIALOGUE – PATTERNS

Verb patterns: 've stopped going · 've started running · keep meaning · meaning to exercise · put off starting · Try going · remember hating · look forward to running · goal is to feel · need to remember · remember to set · want to come · can't stand getting up · promise to try. Memory: I remember hating it at first. Duty: I need to remember to set my alarm.

Note: Try going with a friend = an experiment (try it and see if it helps).

◆ SPEAKING – TWO MINUTES ABOUT ME, AND PATTERN PATH

Two minutes about me is open: listen for at least three -ing verbs, three to verbs, one preposition + -ing, one purpose and one meaning-change verb used correctly. Model: I really enjoy cooking, but I can't stand washing the dishes. I've stopped buying lunch at work, because I'm saving up to take a trip. I'm hoping to run a 10K this year, so I go running to clear my head. I'm not very good at getting up early. I remember hating running at school, so this is a big change!

Pattern Path: the full referee sheet is in the classroom materials (set C).

Q1

Which sentence is correct?

A) I'm tired of to wait.

B) I'm tired of waiting.

C) I'm tired for wait.

Why: a verb straight after a preposition (of) always takes -ing. C also has the wrong preposition.

Q2

"On the way home, he stopped ___ a coffee." (He paused in order to get one.)

A) to buy

B) buying

C) for buying

Why: stop to do = pause in order to do something. Stopped buying would mean he quit the habit. For + -ing doesn't express the purpose of an action.

Q3 · new

Which sentence means "I have a memory of doing it"?

A) I remembered to call my mom.

B) I remember calling my mom on her birthday.

C) I remember to call my mom every Sunday.

Why: remember + -ing looks back at something you did. A and C are about a duty (not forgetting to do it).

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (2.1)

"I'm looking forward to see you." · "I went there for buying..." · "She suggested me to go." · "They made me to wait." · "Let me to help." · "I want that you..." · "I enjoy to cook." · "without say" / "before eat" · "To learn English is difficult." (stiff, not wrong) · "I stopped to smoke" when the learner means they quit. Correct the meaning-change errors every time (they say the opposite of what the learner means); treat look forward to see as a high-priority fix because it is so frequent in emails.

2.2 · MODALS OF DEDUCTION IN THE PAST (C5)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – READ THE CLUE

- 1 must have lived
- 2 can't have graded (or couldn't have graded)
- 3 might have gone ... might have fallen (may / could have also correct)
- 4 must have enjoyed
- 5 must have been
- 6 can't have left (couldn't have left)
- 7 must have studied

Accept might have lived in 1 if the learner explains that excellent English could also come from years of study (good reasoning; the target is must have = strong evidence). In 5, might have been is acceptable if the learner reads it as "maybe she was lucky, maybe she was clever." Wrong: "mustn't have graded" · "must have grade" · "must had enjoyed."

◆ EXERCISE 2 – HOW SURE ARE YOU?

- 1 She must have forgotten about the meeting.
- 2 He might / may / could have taken the earlier bus.
- 3 They can't / couldn't have seen the sign.
- 4 She might not / may not have gotten my message. (British: got)
- 5 It must have been a mistake.
- 6 He can't / couldn't have finished the report in one hour.

In 4, not couldn't have gotten (that is "sure it didn't," too strong for "it's possible"). Explain the difference: might not have = maybe not · can't have = surely not.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – CORRECT THE ERROR

- 1 He can't have heard the alarm. (or couldn't have heard)
- 2 You could have told me the meeting was canceled!
- 3 She must have been exhausted after that long flight.
- 4 They can't have received the invitation, because nobody came.
- 5 I should have booked the tickets earlier.
- 6 He must have forgotten my number.

- 7 It must have rained last night.

Contractions (could've, must've, should've) are correct in informal writing. mustn't = prohibition, never deduction.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – REACT (SAMPLE ANSWERS)

- 1 I should have checked the forecast. / I should have taken my umbrella.
- 2 You shouldn't have lent him the money. / You should have said no.
- 3 I shouldn't have stayed up so late. / I should have gone to bed earlier.
- 4 She shouldn't have sent it. / She should have waited and calmed down first.
- 5 I could have gone to the concert, but I stayed home. (a missed chance; also: I should have gone!)
- 6 You could have told me! / You should have told me. (both correct: could have sounds a little annoyed; should have is direct criticism)

Open answers: check for should(n't) have + past participle and a sensible judgment. Wrong: "I should took..." · "You mustn't have lent..."

◆ EXERCISE 5 – THREE PUZZLES (SCRIPT 2.2-A), MODEL ANSWERS

- 1 Ana's kitchen: Her roommate must have made soup and gone out. She can't have left long ago (the soup is still warm). She might have gone to the store.
- 2 Ben's desk: Ben must have gone on vacation. He can't have left in a hurry (his desk is tidy and he left a note about the plant). He might have gone to the beach.
- 3 The empty classroom: The class must have moved to Room 8. The teacher might have written the note. They can't have gone home (you can hear them laughing).

Accept any logical deduction with modal + have + past participle.

◆ DIALOGUE – THE OFFICE CAKE

Sure yes: He must have eaten it · He must have thought it was leftovers and thrown it out. Sure no: He can't have taken it · She couldn't have eaten a whole chocolate cake. Possible: someone else might have left · she could have been here. Judgment: we shouldn't have left it · You should have put your name on it. Past participles: eaten, taken, left, been, eaten, left, put, thought, thrown. The online lesson has "binned it" (British) and "half four" (= four-thirty).

◆ SPEAKING – THE MYSTERY OF ROOM 12

What happened (Script 2.2-B): the Saturday Walking Club (Maria, Joe, Ahmed, Lin) came in at 7:30 to prepare a surprise 70th birthday party for Rosa, the club leader. Lin bought the cake at 7:50 in the rain. They saw Rosa's note (she was coming in early at 9:30), so they changed to Plan B: Riverside Park at 10:30. They took the cake and left in a hurry, leaving the banner half up, the umbrella, the charger and Ahmed's keys.

Model deductions: They must have been planning a surprise party for Rosa. (A3, C1) · Rosa can't have known about it. (C1, D1) · Someone must have bought the cake before the party. (B1) · They can't have eaten the cake: the plates and knife are clean. (B2) · They must have taken the cake with them. (B1, B2) · Four people must have been here: four cups, four names. (A2, C1) · They must have seen Rosa's note and changed their plans. (D1, D2) · They must have left in a hurry. (A3, C2, C3) · They can't have left long ago: the coffee is still warm. (A1) · Whoever brought the umbrella must have arrived before 8:00. (B3) · Someone might have dropped the car keys; the owner might have walked to the park. (C3, D3) · They should have checked the notice board / booked the park in the first place.

Scoring the verdict: 1 point each for the surprise party, Rosa's note, Plan B at the park, leaving in a hurry, the dropped keys. Reward reasoning: a verdict with "might have" for the right uncertain parts is better than an overconfident one.

◆ SELF - CHECK

Q1

"The kitchen was spotless when I got home. Someone ____ cleaned it." (You're almost sure.)

A) must have

B) mustn't have

C) can't have

Why: almost sure it happened → must have. mustn't have doesn't exist as a deduction; can't have says it didn't happen.

Q2

Your friend missed a deadline because you never reminded them. Which sentence expresses your regret?

A) I should have reminded you.

B) I must have reminded you.

C) I could of reminded you.

Why: should have = the right thing, but it didn't happen. B is a deduction (and it's false); C has the "of" spelling error.

Q3 · new

Which sentence is correct?

A) She mustn't have seen us.

B) She can't have seen us.

C) She can't has seen us.

Why: the negative of must have is can't have; after a modal, have never changes to has.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (2.2)

"She mustn't have known." · "must of / could of / should of" (writing) · "He must has gone." · "It must have rain." · "She must have went." · "Maybe he must left." · "He can't have left" heard as "He can have left" (American /kænt/: listen for the vowel). Also a meaning error: using must have for everything, with no sense of certainty. In feedback, ask "How sure are you?" before correcting the form.

2.3 · USED TO / BE USED TO / GET USED TO (C6)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – CHOOSE THE STRUCTURE

1 used to have · 2 get used to it · 3 is ('s) used to seeing · 4 get used to driving · 5 used to be

Wrong: 3 "used to see" (that would mean she saw blood in the past but not now) · 2 "be used to it" (grammatical, but the situation is adapting, a process).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – BASE VERB OR -ING?

1 play (base: used to) · 2 working (be used to) · 3 living (get used to) · 4 walk (Did ... use to) · 5 getting (get used to) · 6 like (didn't use to) · 7 using (get used to).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – CORRECT THE ERROR

- 1 I'm used to getting up early these days. (be used to + -ing)
- 2 She didn't use to like her boss. (drop the d after didn't)
- 3 It took me a month to get used to eating with chopsticks. (get used to + -ing)
- 4 I used to live in Denver ten years ago. (past: keep the d) · Also correct: I lived in Denver ten years ago.
- 5 Are you used to working on weekends now? (be used to + -ing)

Accept "She never used to like her boss" in 2 (also correct). Note on 4: used to with "ten years ago" is fine for a period of time, but many teachers prefer the simple past with a specific time. Accept both.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – DANA'S NEW SHIFT (SCRIPT 2.3-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6
start	sleeping	got used to	is used to / 's used to	get used to	get used to

Also accept 4 has gotten used to (the meaning is the same: the process is finished). Wrong: 1 "starting" · 2 "sleep" · 4 "used to" (without is).

◆ EXERCISE 5 – SAY IT WITH USED TO, BE USED TO OR GET USED TO

- 1 I'm used to early meetings. / I'm used to having early meetings.
- 2 I'm getting used to the new software. / I'm getting used to using the new software.
- 3 Did you use to have a car when you lived downtown?
- 4 He got used to the cold weather (after a year). / After a year, he was used to the cold.
- 5 My grandmother didn't use to wear jeans. / My grandmother never used to wear jeans.

◆ DIALOGUE – SORT THE USED TOS

Past (gone): I used to work in an office · I used to sit all day · Did you use to be a night owl? · I used to stay up until one.
Now (familiar): Are you used to it yet? · I'm still not used to getting up · I'm used to being in bed · You'll be so used to it.
Changing (adapting): I'm getting used to it · You'll get used to it · I couldn't get used to going to bed at eight · It takes some getting used to. Note: You'll be so used to it is a future state; couldn't get used to is a past process that didn't finish (at that time).

◆ SPEAKING – ADJUSTING TO SOMETHING NEW, AND FIND SOMEONE WHO

Adjusting (open): check for 2 used to + base verb, 2 be used to + noun / -ing, 1 get used to, and advice. Model (new technology): I used to pay for everything with cash, and I didn't use to check my bank balance very often. Now I'm used to paying with my phone, and I'm used to getting a notification every time I spend money. I'm still getting used to the banking app: I can never find the "transfer" button! My advice: you'll get used to it, but ask someone to show you the first time. Find someone who: check the question forms: Are you used to getting up before six? · Did you use to play an instrument? · Are you getting used to a new phone or app? · Did you use to have a different job? · Didn't you use to like coffee? / Did you use to dislike coffee?

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

"When I first moved here the silence felt strange, but now I ___ it."

A) used to

B) am used to

C) used to be

Why: the silence is normal for me now: a present state → am used to + noun / pronoun.

Q2

Which sentence uses the correct verb form?

A) I'm used to work long shifts.

B) I'm used to working long shifts.

C) I'm getting used to work long shifts.

Why: after be / get used to, to is a preposition, so the verb takes -ing.

Q3 · new

"She ___ drive a small car, but now she drives a truck for work."

A) is used to

B) used to

C) got used to

Why: a past habit that isn't true now, followed by a base verb (drive) → used to. A and C would need driving.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (2.3)

"I'm used to work nights." · "I use to drink tea every morning." (present habit) · "I didn't used to..." (writing) · "I used to the cold." (missing be) · "I'm used to it" for "I'm getting used to it" (state vs process) · "used" pronounced /ju:zd tu:/. Correct the base-verb-after-be used to error every time: it changes the structure. Treat the missing d / extra d as a writing-only point.

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark accuracy and range. A sentence is correct when the structure is right (be + past participle in every passive, the right infinitive for the timing, -ing vs past participle in a reduced clause, the same subject in a participle clause, the right pattern after a reporting verb) and the meaning matches the original. Be generous about optional things: that can be used or dropped; have and get are both fine in the causative; will be and is going to be are both fine; in suggest / insist that, accept the base verb (that we go, American), should + base, and the backshifted form (that we went, common in British English). Contractions are fine. American English is the model; British spellings (analysed, apologised, cancelled) are acceptable when a learner uses them. When a learner writes a correct sentence that uses a different structure from the target, accept it and point to the target: "Correct! Can you also say it with Pattern B?"

3.1 • THE PASSIVE — ADVANCED & IMPERSONAL (C7)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE RADIO BULLETIN (SCRIPT 3.1-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
is thought to be	was found	is believed to have been left	has been asked	was returned	is said to have been borrowed	will be held

Accept contractions from the audio only where the meaning is the same ('s thought to be). Item 3 is the hardest (Pattern B + earlier action + passive infinitive): if learners write is believed to have left, ask "Did the piano leave, or did someone leave it?"

◆ EXERCISE 2 – UP THE LADDER

- 1 are analyzed (also: are analysed)
- 2 will be built
- 3 have been sold (have already been sold if the learner moves "already")
- 4 must be completed

- 5 should have been finished
- 6 was being repaired
- 7 are being cleaned
- 8 might have been delivered

Wrong: 1 "is analyzed" (subject is plural) · 5 "should have finished" (missing been: active meaning) · 6 "was repairing" · 7 "are cleaning" · 8 "might be delivered" (not past) / "might have delivered".

◆ EXERCISE 3 – BOTH WAYS

- 1 A: It is said that the castle is haunted. · B: The castle is said to be haunted.
- 2 A: It is believed that the economy is recovering. · B: The economy is believed to be recovering.
- 3 A: It was reported that the CEO had left the country. · B: The CEO was reported to have left the country.
- 4 A: It is known that she was a brilliant scientist. · B: She is known to have been a brilliant scientist.
- 5 A: It is thought that the tortoise is about 120. · B: The tortoise is thought to be about 120.
- 6 A: It is said that the singer is living in Canada now. · B: The singer is said to be living in Canada now.

3 and 4 need to have + pp because the reported action happened earlier than the reporting. In 3 the reporting verb is past (reported), so Pattern A keeps the past perfect and Pattern B uses was reported. Also accept in 3: It has been reported that... · 6 B: to live (a state; "now" makes to be living better). Wrong: "It is said the castle to be haunted" (mixing A and B) · 4 B "She is known to be a brilliant scientist" (only correct if she still is: the original says was).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – NOW OR EARLIER?

1 to have been built (earlier, and the castle received the action) · 2 to be announced (future/same-time expectation) · 3 to be living (in progress, "at the moment") · 4 to have escaped (earlier) · 5 to be (he is a great cook now) · 6 to have been sold (earlier; "last week").

In 3, "to have lived" would mean she lived there in the past; with "at the moment," it's wrong. In 2, expected naturally points to the future, so to be announced is right even though "tomorrow" is later than now.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – THE CAUSATIVE

- 1 I had / got my car serviced yesterday.
- 2 She is having / getting her hair cut (right now).
- 3 We are going to have / will have / will get our portraits taken next week.
- 4 He had / got his bike stolen last night.
- 5 I had / got a new key cut this morning.
- 6 We are going to have / get our windows cleaned on Friday.

Wrong: "I had serviced my car" (= I did it myself, earlier) · "She is cutting her hair" (she does it herself) · "I got repaired my car" (word order: object before the participle) · "I had my car service" (no participle).

◆ DIALOGUE – IN THE NEWSROOM

Passives: is thought to weigh · It is thought that... · was grown · is said to have fed · 'll (will) be weighed · is expected.

Causative: to have it made into pies. Rumors: it weighs about a thousand pounds and she fed it milk every day (reported with is thought / is said). Facts: was grown by Mrs. Olsen · will be weighed on Saturday. A new state record is expected is a prediction, reported as a fact about expectations.

◆ SPEAKING – NEWS REPORT REWRITE

Warm-up lines: 1 The new bakery is said to use a 100-year-old recipe. / It is said that the new bakery uses... · 2 The owner is thought to have learned to bake in Italy. / It is thought that the owner learned... · 3 It is going to be opened / It will be opened next Monday. · 4 Long lines are expected on the first day. / It is expected that there will be long lines on the first day.

Model bulletin (Newsroom story 1, the giant sandwich): "Record Sandwich Stretches Across Riverside Park. A sandwich measuring more than 300 feet was made in Riverside Park last night by 40 volunteers. It is said to be longer than a football field and is believed to have taken all night to build. It will be measured by an official judge on Friday, and a new record is expected. It will then be cut into 1,000 pieces and shared with visitors. Tickets must be bought in advance." Model bulletins for all six stories are printed small at the bottom of each Newsroom B card (classroom materials, set C). Check the tick-boxes: Pattern A, Pattern B, a modal passive, another tense, to have + pp.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

"People think the manager left the company last year." Which impersonal passive is correct?

A) The manager is thought to leave the company last year.

B) The manager is thought to have left the company last year.

C) It is thought the manager to have left the company last year.

Why: the leaving happened before the thinking, so Pattern B needs to have + past participle. A puts the action at the same time. C mixes Pattern A (It...) with Pattern B (...to have left).

Q2

A mechanic fixed your brakes yesterday. Which sentence correctly uses "have something done"?

A) I had fixed my brakes yesterday.

B) I had fix my brakes yesterday.

C) I had my brakes fixed yesterday.

Why: have + object + past participle. A is the past perfect: it means you fixed them yourself. B has no participle.

Q3 · new

"The form ____ yesterday. Now it's too late."

A) should have sent

B) should have been sent

C) should be sent

Why: the form doesn't send anything: it receives the action (passive), and it's a criticism of the past (modal perfect). Modal + have been + pp. A is active (the form sent something); C is present/future.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (3.1)

"It is said him to be rich." · "He is said that he is rich." · "Is said that..." (no It) · "He is thought to steal the money." (for an earlier action) · "The piano is believed to have left by a musician." (active infinitive for a passive meaning) · "It should have done yesterday." · "I cut my hair yesterday" (for a haircut at a salon) · "I had repaired my car" (for the causative) · "The road is repairing." Treat to be / to have been as the key B2 accuracy point, and praise range (widely believed, reportedly, is expected to be completed).

3.2 · RELATIVE & PARTICIPLE CLAUSES (C8)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE OLD TOWN AUDIO TOUR (SCRIPT 3.2-A)

1 Built · 2 standing · 3 Located · 4 painted · 5 Having climbed · 6 selling · 7 Surrounded.

Follow-up question for each: "Does the noun do it or receive it?" (1 receives · 2 does · 3 receives · 4 receives · 5 the visitors did it, earlier · 6 does · 7 receives.)

◆ EXERCISE 2 – REDUCE THE RELATIVE CLAUSE

1 The people waiting outside look cold.

2 The email sent yesterday never arrived.

- 3 Any student failing the test can retake it.
- 4 The paintings stolen in 2004 were finally found.
- 5 The road connecting the two towns is closed.
- 6 The man repairing our roof is from Ohio.
- 7 Houses built before 1950 often need new windows.

In 3, failing works because it's a general condition (any student, any time). The online lesson uses British resit; accept it. Wrong: 2 "The email sending yesterday" · 4 "The paintings stealing / stole" · 7 "Houses building before 1950" · keeping part of the pronoun ("The email which sent yesterday").

◆ EXERCISE 3 – COMBINE

- 1 Not feeling well, she stayed at home.
- 2 Driving to work, he heard the news on the radio. (also: While driving to work, ...)
- 3 Having finished dinner, they went for a walk. (also: After finishing dinner, ...)
- 4 Not knowing his number, I couldn't call him.
- 5 Located in the old town hall, the museum is open every day. (also: The museum, located in the old town hall, is open every day.)
- 6 Having read the report, she called the team.

Wrong: 1 "Feeling not well" (not goes first) · 3 "Finishing dinner, they went for a walk" (possible, but the sequence is less clear: accept with a note) · 4 "Not knowing his number, he couldn't..." (changes the subject) · 5 "Locating in the old town hall" (the museum doesn't locate anything).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – DANGLER DOCTOR (MODELS: ANY VERSION THAT FIXES THE SUBJECT IS CORRECT)

- 1 Looking out of the window, I thought the mountains were beautiful. / When I looked out of the window, the mountains were beautiful.
- 2 Having eaten too much, I felt sleepy. / The meal made me sleepy because I had eaten too much.
- 3 Running for the bus, I felt my bag fall open. / As I was running for the bus, my bag fell open.
- 4 Opening the fridge, I noticed that the milk smelled terrible. / When I opened the fridge, the milk smelled terrible.
- 5 Tired after work, I found the sofa very inviting. / Because I was tired after work, the sofa looked very inviting.

Item 5 is a stretch item: Tired after work is an adjective phrase, not a participle clause, but it dangles in exactly the same way. Two ways to fix any dangler: change the main-clause subject, or expand the participle into a full clause with its own subject.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – REDUCE IT, OR KEEP IT?

- 1 ✓ The people working in this office are very friendly.
- 2 ✗ One finished action in the past: "the man fixing my sink yesterday" sounds wrong. Keep who fixed.
- 3 ✓ The cake made by my neighbor won first prize.
- 4 ✗ Non-defining (extra information, commas): keep it full in careful writing. (My brother, living in Houston, ... is possible in literary style, but not the target.)
- 5 ✗ for a participle: that is the object (we watched it), so there's no participle to keep. You can only drop the pronoun: The movie we watched last night was boring. (Accept this as a correct "shorter" answer.)
- 6 ✓ Passengers traveling with children may board first. (British: travelling)

◆ DIALOGUE – EDITING THE NEWSLETTER

Reduced clauses: The yard sale organized by the tenants' committee · Anyone wanting to sell things. Participle clause: Having finished the draft, I sent it to Maria. (The joke "Having finished the draft, Maria got an email" is a dangler: it says Maria finished it.) Ben keeps Mrs. Cruz, who lives in 3B, in full because it's a non-defining clause: extra information inside commas.

◆ SPEAKING – SENTENCE COMPRESSION WORKSHOP

Round 1 strips: the target sentences are printed on the strip answer card (classroom materials, set D). Round 2 models (any version of 60 words or fewer that keeps every fact, has 4+ participle clauses and no dangles is correct):

- ◆ A · Notice (60 words): Located next to the library, the Maple Street Community Center (built in 1975, repainted last summer) offers free English classes taught by neighborhood volunteers. Anyone wanting to join should register at the front desk, open 9 to 5. Children under 12 must come with an adult. Visitors using the computer room, donated by a local bank, must sign in first.
- ◆ B · Museum label (57 words): Made in England in 1820 and decorated with hand-painted blue flowers, this teapot belonged to a Riverside sea captain who carried it on all his voyages. Found in an attic in 1998 by the family who had bought his house, it was given to the museum. His map, displayed next to his compass, is in Room 3.
- ◆ C · Mini-biography (60 words): Born in Brazil, Rosa Mendes moved to Riverside in 2005. Not speaking English, she took evening classes. Having worked in a hotel kitchen for six years and saved her money, she opened her Elm Street bakery in 2012. Her bread, made with her grandmother's recipe, attracts people living across town. She employs three students studying cooking at the community college.
- ◆ D · Apartment ad (48 words): For rent: a third-floor, two-bedroom apartment in a building built in 2010, with bedrooms facing the park and a kitchen renovated last year (new fridge included). Pets welcome. Tenants wanting parking can rent a space for $50 a month. Interested? Call Mr. Brown, the building manager (apartment 1A).

Spot the Difference answers are in the classroom materials (set E).

Q1

Reduce: "The report which was prepared by the committee is on your desk."

- A) The report preparing by the committee is on your desk.
- B) The report was prepared by the committee is on your desk.
- C) The report prepared by the committee is on your desk.

Why: the report receives the action (it was prepared), so it reduces to the past participle. A uses -ing (active); B keeps was and makes two verbs.

Q2

Which sentence has a dangling participle?

- A) Feeling nervous, she took a deep breath.
- B) Sleeping deeply, the alarm didn't wake me.
- C) Having finished, we left the room quietly.

Why: grammatically, "the alarm" is sleeping. Fix: "Sleeping deeply, I didn't hear the alarm." In A and C the subjects match.

Q3 · new

Which sentence is correct?

- A) The books selling here are second-hand.
- B) The books sold here are second-hand.
- C) The books were sold here are second-hand.

Why: the books don't sell anything: they are sold (passive → past participle). C has two main verbs.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (3.2)

"The books selling here..." · "the bridge building in 1890" · "Walking home, the rain started." · "Having finished the report, the printer broke." · "the man calling me yesterday" (one finished action) · "Feeling not well..." · irregular participles ("the paintings stealed," "the letter wrote by John") · reducing inside commas in formal writing. In speech, don't push participle clauses: "the guy who's standing there" is perfectly natural. Praise learners who choose not to reduce and can say why.

3.3 · REPORTING VERBS & PATTERNS (C9)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE RESIDENTS' MEETING (SCRIPT 3.3-A)

1	Ms. Park suggested making a schedule so each floor has its own laundry day.
2	Mr. Diaz denied taking down the "Out of order" sign.
3	Tom admitted leaving his clothes in the dryer all weekend.
4	Mr. Diaz refused to buy a new washing machine until the owner approved it.
5	Ms. Okafor agreed to make the schedule and put it on the door.
6	Tom insisted on cleaning the laundry room on Saturday.
7	Ms. Park reminded everyone to take their clothes out on time.

The pattern after each gap tells you the verb: -ing (1, 2, 3, 6), to (4, 5), person + to (7). In 1, has may be backshifted to had; both are fine because the schedule plan is still true.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – CHOOSE THE BEST VERB

1 offered · 2 refused · 3 admitted · 4 warned · 5 accused · 6 apologized (British: apologised).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – THE CORRECT PATTERN

- 1 promised to call (she promised to call me back)
- 2 denied taking (also: denied stealing; denied that he had taken)
- 3 advised me to walk (any person: advised him / her to walk)
- 4 insisted on paying
- 5 suggested taking (also: suggested getting; suggested that we take)
- 6 congratulated her / him / them on passing
- 7 refused to pay
- 8 agreed to work

Wrong: 2 "denied to take" · 3 "advised to walk" (no person) · 4 "insisted to pay" / "insisted in paying" · 5 "suggested to take" / "suggested us to take" · 6 "congratulated her for passing" (accept with a note: for is heard, but on is the standard) · 7 "refused not to pay" (double negative).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – FIX THE PATTERN ERROR

- 1 She suggested taking the earlier train. / She suggested (that) I take the earlier train.
- 2 He recommended visiting the old town. / He recommended (that) I visit the old town.

- 3 They apologized for being late.
- 4 He accused me of stealing his idea.
- 5 She admitted breaking the vase. / She admitted (that) she had broken the vase. / She admitted to breaking the vase.
- 6 I agree with the new schedule.
- 7 He refused to work on Saturday.

5: admit to + -ing is correct and very common in American English; the error is only the infinitive (to break). 7: the original is a refusal about a future action, so deny is the wrong verb, not only the wrong pattern ("He denied working on Saturday" would mean he says he didn't work).

◆ EXERCISE 5 – THE MEETING SIX

- 1 Lena suggested starting the meeting at nine instead of eight. / Lena suggested (that) we start the meeting at nine...
- 2 Omar refused to change his day off.
- 3 Kate denied losing the keys. (She said she had given them to Paul.) / Kate denied that she had lost the keys.
- 4 Paul admitted forgetting to give them back. / Paul admitted (that) he had forgotten to give them back.
- 5 Mia agreed to order the new chairs.
- 6 Sam insisted on staying late and locking up.

Accept having lost / having forgotten (perfect -ing, a stretch form). In 6, both -ing forms are needed after on: "staying late and locking up" (not "and lock up").

◆ DIALOGUE – DANA AND MARCO, REPORTED

Model: Dana apologized for forgetting to send the report. Marco reminded her that she had promised to have it ready. Dana admitted (that) she was at fault and promised to finish it that night. Marco suggested setting a reminder on her phone. Dana agreed and insisted on handling the client herself. Finally, Marco warned her not to miss the Friday deadline. Also accept: Marco complained that it was the second time · Dana offered to email the client.

◆ SPEAKING – MEETING MINUTES

Model minutes (Meeting 2, Brightside Café): "Staff meeting, Monday. Present: Alex (manager), Sam, Jo, Lee. Alex suggested a rotating weekend schedule. Sam refused to work on Sunday mornings because of his class, but offered to work Saturday evenings instead. Jo denied breaking the coffee machine and insisted on calling a repair company. Lee admitted forgetting to clean the machine on Friday and apologized for the mess in the kitchen. Lee agreed to cover Sam's Sunday shift. Alex reminded everyone to clean the machine every night. It was agreed that the new schedule would start next week." Check: 6+ different verbs, no said / told, correct patterns (tick each one), backshift in any that-clauses.

Q1

"Don't walk on the ice." Which correctly reports this warning?

A) She warned walking on the ice.

B) She warned us not to walk on the ice.

C) She warned us to don't walk on the ice.

Why: warn + person + (not) to-infinitive; the negative goes before to. A has no person and the wrong pattern; C puts don't after to. (Also correct: She warned us against walking on the ice.)

Q2

"Let's eat out tonight." Which report is correct?

A) He suggested us to eat out that night.

B) He suggested to eat out that night.

C) He suggested eating out that night.

Why: suggest takes -ing or a that-clause (suggested that we eat out), never an infinitive and never person + to.

Q3 • new

"I didn't break the printer!" Which report is correct?

A) He denied breaking the printer.

B) He denied to break the printer.

C) He refused breaking the printer.

Why: deny reports saying something is not true, + -ing (or that he had broken). B has the wrong pattern; C has the wrong verb (refuse = say no to a future action, + to).

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (3.3)

"She suggested me to..." · "He recommended me to..." · "He denied to pay." (for a refusal) · "I am agree." · "He explained me the problem." · "They apologized to be late." · "She insisted to pay." / "insisted in paying" · "He accused me for lying." · "She reminded to call." (no person) · "He refused not to go." · no backshift in that-clauses ("He admitted that he forgets"). The suggest error is the priority: correct it every time, in speech too. For range, praise insisted on + -ing, admitted having + pp, and precise attitude verbs (claimed, conceded, urged).

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark grammar, meaning and choice together. With linkers, the key is the grammar after the linker (clause, noun / -ing, or a new sentence); a different linker from the same family with correct grammar (even though for although, owing to for due to, as a result for consequently) is correct. Punctuation of connectors counts in writing, not in speech. With clefts, check that the spotlight is on the right element and that be matches the time. With inversion, the auxiliary must come before the subject; Scarcely for Hardly and Seldom for Rarely are fine. Opinion and discussion tasks are open: mark the moves and the language, never the opinion. American English is the model; British forms (emphasise, apologise, realise, cancelled, practise, full stop, programme, holiday) are acceptable when a learner uses them.

4.1 • LINKING IDEAS — THE ARGUMENT BUILDER (C10)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — CITY OR COUNTRYSIDE? (SCRIPT 4.1-B)

a) Neither: the speaker thinks the right choice depends on your stage of life. Accept "It depends."

#	Linker	Function	What follows
1	because	Ca	clause
2	since	Ca	clause
3	However	C	new sentence + comma
4	so (high that)	R	adjective + that
5	whereas	C	clause
6	Despite	C	noun phrase
7	due to	Ca	noun phrase
8	such (a peaceful place that)	R	a + noun + that

9	Even though	C	clause
10	Therefore	R	new sentence + comma

Accept sensible same-grammar alternatives if a learner mishears (as for 2, while for 5, because of for 7, Although for 9). Don't accept because of for 1 or although for 6: the grammar that follows doesn't fit. Learners sometimes label 5 as Ca; it compares two places, so it's contrast.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – CIRCLE THE LINKER THAT FITS THE GRAMMAR

1 Despite (+ noun) · 2 Although (+ clause) · 3 because of (+ noun) · 4 because (+ clause) · 5 However (new sentence after a period) · 6 whereas (+ clause, comparing two people) · 7 due to (+ noun) · 8 so as to (+ base verb)

In 5, the first idea ends with a period, so the second sentence needs a connector: However, Although would have to join both ideas inside one sentence (Although the rent is lower here, the commute is much longer). In 8, "so that to" does not exist; so that + clause is possible ("so that she could improve...").

◆ EXERCISE 3 – JOIN THE IDEAS

- 1 Although the office is modern, nobody likes working there. (or: Nobody likes working there, although the office is modern.)
- 2 In spite of being nervous, he gave an excellent presentation. (or: In spite of his nerves / In spite of the fact that he was nervous...)
- 3 The flight was canceled due to a technical fault. (noun: not "due to there was...")
- 4 Online shopping is quick, whereas shopping in person is more social. (or: Whereas online shopping is quick, shopping in person...)
- 5 The bakery raised its prices. Consequently, it lost customers. (or: ...its prices; consequently, it lost customers.)
- 6 Despite the fact that it was raining, the concert went ahead.

Wrong: "In spite of he was nervous" · "due to there was a fault" · "The bakery raised its prices, consequently it lost customers." (comma splice: accept in speech, correct in writing). British cancelled is fine.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – SO OR SUCH (A / AN)?

1 so (adjective) · 2 such a (a + adjective + noun) · 3 such (plural noun, no article) · 4 so (adverb) · 5 such an (an before the vowel sound of awful)

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FIND AND FIX

- 1 Although it was expensive, we booked the hotel. (or: Despite the price / Despite the fact that it was expensive...)
- 2 The road was closed because there was an accident. (or: because of an accident)
- 3 Although the job was hard, she loved it. (or: The job was hard. However, she loved it.)

4 Although the prices are low, the quality is poor. (delete but; or: The prices are low, but the quality is poor.)

5 It was such a good book that I read it in one night. (or: The book was so good that...)

◆ SPEAKING – THE ARGUMENT BUILDER PLANNER (OPEN)

Look for: a hook, one point per side with a cause linker, a contrast linker at the pivot, a result linker (so / so...that / such...that / therefore) and a conclusion that stays balanced. Model (working from home): Hook: Most of us have tried it by now. · Side 1: no commute → time and money, because you don't travel. · Pivot: However, ... · Side 2: it can be so isolating that motivation drops; meetings online → misunderstandings. · Conclusion: Therefore, a mix of home and office days is probably the best of both.

◆ LINKER SORT CARDS (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET B)

+ clause (8)	although · though · even though · whereas · while · because · since · as
+ noun / -ing (5)	despite · in spite of · because of · due to · owing to
New sentence + comma (5)	However, · Nevertheless, · On the other hand, · Therefore, · Consequently,

Common mis-sorts: despite under "+ clause" (the key error of the lesson), however under "+ clause," because of under "+ clause." so, so...that, such...that and so as to / in order to are not in the sort; they have their own flashcards (Set A).

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which sentence is correct?

A) Despite the train was delayed, we caught it.

B) Despite the delay, we caught the train.

C) Although the delay, we caught the train.

Why: despite + noun. A puts a clause after despite (fix: Although the train was delayed or Despite the fact that...); C puts a bare noun after although.

Q2

"It was ___ interesting book ___ I finished it in one night."

A) so ... that

B) such an ... so

C) such an ... that

Why: a noun phrase follows (an interesting book), so such an... that. A would need "so interesting that"; B uses the wrong second word.

Q3 · new

Which sentence is punctuated correctly?

A) The shop was losing money; therefore, it closed.

B) The shop was losing money, therefore it closed.

C) The shop was losing money therefore, it closed.

Why: therefore is a sentence connector: a semicolon (or period) before it and a comma after it. B is a comma splice; C has no break before therefore.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (4.1)

"Despite it was..." · "Despite of..." · "because of the rent is high" · "However it was late, we stayed." · "Although..., but..." / "Because..., so..." · "so a good day" / "such good" / "such a good people" · "..., however, ..." comma splices in writing · "In spite being tired" (missing of) · "Therefore" in a relaxed chat (a register slip, not an error: offer so). In the Argument Builder, note errors for the feedback stage only; never stop a speaker.

4.2 · ADDING EMPHASIS — MAKE IT EMPHATIC (C11)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — THE TEAM LUNCH (SCRIPT 4.2-A)

1 Tomás (not the speaker: "It was Tomás who organized it.") · 2 on Monday (not Friday: "It was on Monday that I booked it.") · 3 the service ("What impressed me most was the service.") · 4 the price ("The thing that surprised me was the price.")

5 Never have I seen waiters so calm with twenty people. · Not only was it cheaper than we expected, but they also gave us free dessert. · No sooner had I sat down than I wanted to book it again.

Follow-up: "What did the confirmation email change?" (It came on Friday, which is why A thought B booked late: "It was the confirmation that came on Friday.")

◆ EXERCISE 2 – MAKE AN IT -CLEFT

- 1 It was my neighbor who (that) fixed my bike.
- 2 It was in Chicago that we first met.
- 3 It was the roof that the storm damaged.
- 4 It was in 2019 that they moved.
- 5 It was the manager's email that caused all the confusion.

Accept which for things in 3 and 5 (less common). Don't accept "It was in Chicago where we first met" in writing (accept in speech). It is for past events is wrong: "It is my neighbor who fixed..." → It was.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – BUILD UP TO THE KEY IDEA

- 1 What I admire is her honesty. (or: What I admire about her is her honesty.)
- 2 What frustrates me is the traffic.
- 3 What he did was (to) simply apologize. (also: What he simply did was apologize.)
- 4 The thing that worries me is the cost.
- 5 The reason (why) I called is to say thank you. (or: The reason I called was to say thank you.)

◆ EXERCISE 4 – MAKE IT DRAMATIC

- 1 Never have I tasted such good coffee.
- 2 Not only did she call, but she also came in person.
- 3 No sooner had we sat down than the alarm went off. (than, not when; past perfect for the first action)
- 4 Rarely does he ask for help. (no auxiliary → does; base verb ask)
- 5 Only later did they realize the danger.

In 2, accept "Not only did she call; she also came in person." In 3, accept "Hardly had we sat down when..." only if the learner changed the trigger on purpose.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FIND AND FIX

- 1 Never have I worked on such a busy project. (auxiliary before subject)
- 2 No sooner had we arrived than it started to rain.
- 3 What I need is a long rest. (no extra it)
- 4 Rarely does she complain about her job.
- 5 It was Tomás who organized the party last Friday. (past event → was)

◆ SPEAKING – MAKE IT EMPHATIC PLANNER (OPEN)

Look for: a frame to open, an it-cleft that corrects a common view, a what-cleft build-up, and at most one inversion.
 Model (public transportation): The thing that really bothers me about buses in this town is the timetable. People think it's the price that keeps them away, but it's the waiting that does it. What we really need is a bus every ten minutes. Never have I waited so long for a bus as last winter.

◆ PLAIN → DRAMATIC CARDS (SET D) – MODEL ANSWERS

#	Hint version	A cleft that also works
1	It was my neighbor who fixed my bike on Sunday.	It was on Sunday that my neighbor fixed my bike.
2	What I need is a long vacation.	All I need is a long vacation.
3	Never have I tasted such good coffee.	What I'll remember is the coffee.
4	Not only was the bus late, but it was also full.	What annoyed me was that the bus was full.
5	No sooner had we arrived than the power went out. / Hardly had we arrived when...	It was just after we arrived that the power went out.
6	What bothers me is the noise from the street.	The thing that bothers me is the noise...
7	Rarely does she complain.	What she never does is complain.
8	Only after the meeting did I understand the problem.	It was only after the meeting that I understood the problem.
9	Little did they know (that) the boss was listening.	What they didn't know was that the boss was listening.
10	It was the instructions that confused everyone.	What confused everyone was the instructions.
11	The reason I called is to say thank you.	What I wanted to say was thank you.
12	All I want is a quiet weekend.	What I want is a quiet weekend.

◆ SET THE RECORD STRAIGHT (SET E) – MODEL CORRECTIONS

Pair 1 (the office party): It was Nadia who organized it. · It was on Friday that it happened. · It was the music that was the problem (not the pizza). Pair 2 (the broken washing machine): It was the upstairs neighbor who called the repair person. · It was the dryer that broke, not the washing machine. · It was on Tuesday that it was fixed. Pair 3 (the family trip): It was my brother who planned the trip. · It was by train that we went. · It was the museum that everyone loved. Pair 4 (the new manager): It was Mr. Park who got the job. · It was in March that he started. · It was the schedule that he changed first. Any accurate what-cleft follow-up is a bonus.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Someone thinks you broke the vase, but it was the cat. Which sentence corrects them best?

A) What broke the vase is the cat.

B) The cat broke the vase.

C) It was the cat that broke the vase.

Why: the it-cleft spotlights the real culprit and pushes back on the wrong idea. A is clumsy (and uses is for the past); B is neutral, with no correction.

Q2

Which sentence has the correct word order?

A) Never I have felt so proud.

B) Never have I felt so proud.

C) No sooner I felt proud when it faded.

Why: after Never at the start, the auxiliary comes before the subject. A keeps statement order; C has no inversion and the wrong partner word (than, not when).

Q3 · new

Which what-cleft is correct?

A) What I need is a quiet weekend.

B) What I need it is a quiet weekend.

C) What I need a quiet weekend is.

Why: What + clause + be + key idea. B adds an extra it; C puts the key idea in the wrong place.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (4.2)

"Never I have seen..." · "Not only it was cheap, but..." · "Rarely she complains." · "No sooner... when" / "Hardly... than" · "No sooner we had left..." (no inversion) · "What I need it is..." · "It is John who broke it yesterday." (tense of be) · "It was in Chicago where we met." (accept in speech) · a flat cleft with no stress on the spotlight · three inversions in one minute (a style issue: praise the control, then help them choose one).

4.3 · REVIEW PROJECT — PRESENT, ARGUE & DISCUSS (C12)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — WHAT IS THE PHRASE DOING?

1 S · 2 C · 3 P · 4 H · 5 S · 6 C · 7 H · 8 P

5 is a signpost (it flags the conclusion), even though it also summarizes. 8 is a what-cleft used to persuade: a nice link to 4.2.

◆ EXERCISE 2 — SHOULD WE TRY A FOUR-DAY WEEK? (SCRIPT 4.3-A)

a) I'd like to talk about 1 · I'll cover three points 2 · Let me start with 3 · Moving on to 4 · Finally 5 · To sum up 6 (workbook order: 4 · 6 · 1 · 5 · 2 · 3)

b) ✓ impersonal passive (It is widely believed that...; also It could be argued that...) · ✓ what-cleft (What most people need is...) · ✓ participle clause (Having spoken to several managers...) · ✓ mixed conditional (If we had tried this a year ago, we might already be seeing the results.) · ✓ negative inversion (Not only would it make people happier, but...) · ✗ used to · ✗ must have

c) Dana: some jobs can't be done in four days (nurses, for example). The speaker concedes ("You're right to an extent. Hospitals would need a different model.") and counters ("Even so, I'd argue that most office jobs could make it work.").

◆ EXERCISE 3 — REWRITE FOR RANGE

- 1 It is widely believed that online shopping has changed our towns forever. (or: Online shopping is thought to have changed...)
- 2 If we had planned ahead, we wouldn't have this problem now.
- 3 What concerns me most is the cost.
- 4 Having looked at the data, I reached my conclusion.
- 5 Not only does the plan save money, but it also saves time.

Other valid versions exist; the target structure must be present and accurate. In 2, "wouldn't have had this problem" is a third conditional (past result), not the mixed conditional asked for: accept with a note.

◆ EXERCISE 4 — CORRECT THE ERROR

- 1 Not only does it save money, but it also saves time. (*inversion after Not only)
- 2 It could be argued that we acted too late. (passive: past participle)
- 3 Although it is popular, the app has many problems. (or: Despite its popularity / Despite being popular...)
- 4 We discussed the plan for an hour. (*no about)
- 5 If we had started earlier, we would have finished. (no would in the if-clause; Module 1)

◆ EXERCISE 5 — CONCEDE, THEN COUNTER (MODELS)

- 1 "That's a fair point for people with a few items. However, with a full cart, a cashier is often quicker, and there's no one to help when the machine stops."
- 2 "I take your point; young children need time to play. Even so, a little homework helps them build good habits."
- 3 "You're right to an extent, since most people pay by card. That said, some older people will always prefer cash, so it probably won't disappear completely."

Mark: a real concession (not "Yes, but no") + a counter with a reason. Any side is fine.

◆ PROJECT PARTS A AND B – THE TALK AND THE DISCUSSION

Open. Score with the C12 speaking checklist (classroom materials, Set H). Talk planner: look for an opening, a preview, 2–3 points each with a reason and an example, a close with To sum up, and two objections with concede-and-counter answers; notes, not full sentences. Discussion card: 2 points for the assigned side and one ready concession. The model presentation (Script 4.3-A) shows the full shape.

◆ SELF - CHECK

Q1

Your partner makes a point that is partly true, but you still disagree. What's the best reply?

A) "No, that's completely wrong."

B) "That's a fair point; however, the bigger picture tells a different story."

C) "Yes, you're totally right. I have nothing to add."

Why: it acknowledges the valid part, then counters. A contradicts flatly and sounds combative; C gives up your position.

Q2

Which sentence uses the B2 grammar correctly?

A) "Not only it reduces costs, but it also improves safety."

B) "It is believe that the plan will work."

C) "Not only does it reduce costs, but it also improves safety."

Why: Not only at the start needs inversion (does it reduce). A has no inversion; B needs the past participle (It is believed).

Q3 · new

You've finished your first point and want to start the second. You say:

A) "Moving on to my second point, ..."

B) "To sum up, ..."

C) "I'd like to talk about..."

Why: Moving on to... signals a transition. B signals the end; C opens the talk.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (4.3)

"I am agree." · "We discussed about..." · "According to me..." · "Resuming, ..." (→ To sum up) · "Actually" meaning "currently" · "At the end, ..." (→ Finally / In the end) · "It could be argue..." · "Not only it..." · "If we would have..." · "Despite it is..." · persuade phrases in every sentence ("The fact is... The bottom line is... The fact is...") · conceding without countering, or countering without conceding. In C12, note errors for delayed feedback only; never stop a talk or a discussion to correct.

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark meaning first, then form, then range. An answer is correct if the meaning is right (in progress vs finished · who did the work · how much of the group) and the structure is right: will be + -ing / will have + p.p., present after by the time, by not until for a deadline; have / get + object + p.p. in that order, get ... to / have ... (no to); singular agreement after every, each, neither, either, and of only before the / my / them. Be generous about optional things: contractions (I'll have, we'll be, won't have) or full forms; have or get in the causative unless the item asks for one; going to where will is not required; none of + plural with a singular or a plural verb; neither of them are in speech (not in the formal items). American English is the model; British forms (flat, trousers, tyres, neighbour, film, timetable, whilst) are acceptable when a learner uses them.

5.1 • FUTURE PERFECT & FUTURE CONTINUOUS (C14)

◆ PROGRESS TEST 1 RETURN – "LET'S FIX IT!" (BOARD ERRORS)

If I had known, I would have called you. (no would in the if-clause) · I wish I hadn't said that yesterday. (past regret → past perfect) · She suggested (that) I apply / applying for the job. (suggest + that-clause or -ing; no "suggest me to") · I'm used to getting up at five. (be used to + -ing) · Extras: She must have forgotten her keys. · Despite the rain / In spite of the rain, we went. · Never have I seen such a mess.

◆ EXERCISE 1 – LENA'S PROJECT UPDATE (SCRIPT 5.1-A)

1	2	3	4
will have finished	will be working	starts	will have painted
5	6	7	8
will have arrived	will be cutting	will be serving	Will you be coming

Accept contractions (I'll have finished, I'll be working). Not accepted: 3 "will start" (time clause after by the time) · 1, 4, 5 without have ("will finished") · 6 "will cut" (the meaning is in progress at ten; mark with a note, since it is understandable).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – IN PROGRESS OR ALREADY DONE?

- 1 will be interviewing (in progress between two and four)
- 2 will have set up (finished before the guests arrive)
- 3 will be running (in progress this time next month)
- 4 will have tested (finished within three weeks, before the launch)
- 5 will be unloading (in progress at 7:30)
- 6 will have planted (finished by 2030)

Also correct: contractions; 3 "the new bus line will be running" / "will have started running" (both make sense: accept either with the right form). Wrong: "will interview" in 1 (loses "don't call, I'm busy then") · "will planted" · "will be plant."

◆ EXERCISE 3 – BY, UNTIL OR BY THE TIME?

- 1 by Friday (a deadline: no later than Friday)
- 2 until the end of April (all the time up to then)
- 3 By the time the guests arrive, ... (present in the time clause)
- 4 by lunchtime
- 5 until 10 p.m.
- 6 By the time you get this message, ...

Also correct: 1 before / no later than Friday · 4 before lunchtime. Wrong: 1, 4 "until" · 3, 6 "will arrive / will get."

◆ EXERCISE 4 – MAKE IT POLITE

- 1 Will you be using the projector this afternoon?
- 2 How many people will be coming? (or: will be joining us?)
- 3 Will you be checking any bags?
- 4 Will you be taking (any) vacation in August?
- 5 How long will you be staying?

Accept small changes that keep the form (Will you be needing the projector...?). Wrong: "Will you be use..." · "Are you be using..."

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FIND THE MISTAKE

- 1 By the time you get here, we'll have eaten.

- 2 I'll have finished the report by six.
- 3 By 2030, she will have finished her degree.
- 4 Don't call at 8 — we'll be watching the game. (in progress at 8)
- 5 This time next week, I'll be lying on a beach.

Also correct: 2 "I'll be working on the report until six" (a different, correct sentence; accept with a note). Spelling watch in 5: lie → lying, not "lieing."

◆ DIALOGUE — JOE AND NINA

Future continuous: 'll probably be working · 'll be settling · 'll be looking back. Future perfect: 'll have finished · will you have moved · 'll have signed · 'll have earned. Reference points: this time next year · by then · by the time you start · by September · by winter.

◆ SPEAKING — PROJECT TIMELINE (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET B)

Open. Check: each point on the frame has one will be + -ing and one will have + p.p. idea that matches the meaning; by the time + present; council questions with Will you be...? / Will you have... by...?. Model (Riverside Community Center card): "Next month the builders will be working on the kitchen, and they'll have finished the roof. By the time the summer program starts, we'll have painted all the classrooms. This time next year we'll be running evening English classes, and we'll have trained twenty volunteers. In five years' time we'll have welcomed over ten thousand visitors." Council: "Will you be hiring local people?" · "Will you have fixed the parking lot by opening day?"

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

"Don't call at 8 — we ____ dinner then." Which form fits an action in progress at 8?

A) will be having

B) will have had

C) will have

Why: the action is in progress at the reference point, so it's the future continuous. B means dinner is already finished before 8; C loses the "in progress" meaning.

Q2

Which sentence is correct?

A) By the time you arrive, I'll have cooked dinner.

B) By the time you will arrive, I'll have cooked dinner.

C) I'll have cooked dinner until you arrive.

Why: after by the time the verb is present; the future perfect goes in the main clause. B puts will in the time clause; C uses until (duration) instead of a deadline.

Q3 · new

A hotel receptionist wants to ask about your plans in a polite, neutral way.

A) Will you pay by card?

B) Will you be paying by card?

C) Will you have paid by card?

Why: the future continuous asks about plans, not for a decision, so it sounds softer. A is correct English but more direct; C means "finished paying before a future point," which doesn't fit.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (5.1)

"By the time you will arrive..." · "I'll have finished until six." · "By 2030 I will finished / will has finished..." · "This time tomorrow I will flying." · "At 8 we'll have eaten" when the speaker means in progress · "In two years I'll have finish." (lost -ed) · writing "will of" for will've. Correct the time-clause will and until every time (they are the classic B2 errors); treat a simple will where the continuous would be nicer as a range "upgrade," not an error.

5.2 · THE CAUSATIVE — HAVE / GET SOMETHING DONE (C15)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — MARCO'S SATURDAY (SCRIPT 5.2-A)

1 serviced · 2 tires · 3 printed · 4 made · 5 cut · 6 to fix · 7 look · 8 Marco did (himself): "I washed the dog myself."

Also accept 4 copied / cut (all are used for keys). 8: any answer that shows Marco did it himself ("He washed it himself").

◆ EXERCISE 2 — REWRITE WITH THE CAUSATIVE

1 I have the oil in my car changed every six months.

2 I'm having my phone screen replaced right now.

- 3 We got our wedding invitations printed.
- 4 We've just had the leak under our sink fixed.
- 5 I'll have my new pants shortened.
- 6 We're going to have our living room painted.
- 7 She had her car scratched in the parking lot.

Also correct: get instead of have in 1, 2, 4, 5, 6 (the item doesn't require have for meaning; mark get as fine but note the instruction) · 1 "I have my oil changed" · 7 "got her car scratched." Wrong: "I have changed the oil..." (present perfect: I did it) · "I'm having replaced my phone screen" (order) · 3 "We got printed our invitations."

◆ EXERCISE 3 – MYSELF OR A PROFESSIONAL?

- 1 cut (I do it myself: plain verb)
- 2 had it repaired / had the dishwasher repaired
- 3 changes (himself: plain verb)
- 4 get your eyes checked
- 5 didn't paint ... had it painted
- 6 fixed (herself: plain verb)

The traps are 1, 3 and 6: no one else does the work, so there is no causative. Accept 4 have your eyes checked / tested.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

1	2	3	4	5	6
b	c	a	b	a	c

The order decides: object before the participle = causative (a or b; context decides which); participle before the object = past perfect (c). In 5, "had her nails done" = at a nail salon.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – GET SOMEONE TO / HAVE SOMEONE DO

1 to replace · 2 bring · 3 to call · 4 reschedule · 5 laughing · 6 send get + person + to (1, 3) · have + person + base verb (2, 4, 6) · have + person + -ing for an ongoing effect (5). Wrong: "have a porter to bring" · "got my landlord replace" · 5 "laugh" is possible ("had everyone laugh" = made them laugh once) but the lesson's target is laughing; accept with a note.

◆ DIALOGUE

Causatives: had it detailed · got the dent fixed · get mine serviced · have it checked · having the whole engine rebuilt · have the tires replaced. "Finally managed": I finally got the dent fixed. Note: detailed = professionally cleaned inside and out (the online lesson's British valeted).

◆ SPEAKING – ERRAND WEEK (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET C)

Did it himself	He fixed the dripping kitchen faucet himself (with a YouTube video).
Had it done	He had the oil changed and the brakes checked (Monday, Joe's Auto). · He got 200 flyers printed (Tuesday, QuickPrint). · He had a spare key made for his mom (Thursday, Hardware Hub). · He's having his bike repaired at the bike shop; it'll have been fixed by Monday / he's picking it up on Monday.
Something went wrong	He had / got his car towed from the store parking lot on Friday ($150).
Still needs to get done	He still needs to get his suit pants shortened before the wedding on Saturday (the alterations shop is closed until the 20th, so he'll have to find another shop). · He still needs to get his photo taken for the new ID badge. · (Planned) He's getting his hair cut on Saturday at 9 at Tony's Barber.

Model sentences for the last column: "He still needs to get his pants shortened. He should have them done at another shop before Saturday." · "He hasn't had his ID photo taken yet." · "He's having his hair cut on Saturday morning, before the wedding."

◆ SPEAKING – SERVICES & ERRANDS ROLE-PLAY (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET D)

Open. Check the customer's three moves: (1) two causatives ("I'd like to have the oil changed and get the brakes checked") · (2) a "when" question with a future form ("Will you have finished it by five?" / "When will it be ready?") · (3) one neutral inquiry ("Will you be calling me when it's ready?"). Service providers should explain the card's problem with a future form: "We'll have to order the part, so we won't have finished until Thursday." Model report: "I'm getting my jacket dry-cleaned. They'll have done it by Saturday, and they're having a new button sewn on too."

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

A hairdresser cut your hair yesterday. Which sentence is correct?

A) I had my hair cut yesterday.

B) I had cut my hair yesterday.

C) I had cut yesterday my hair.

Why: have + object + past participle: someone else did it. B is the past perfect (I cut it myself, earlier); C is not a possible word order.

Q2

"She ____ on the train." Someone stole her bag; she didn't arrange it.

A) had her bag stolen

B) had stolen her bag

C) stole her bag

Why: the causative form also expresses misfortune. B and C make her the thief.

Q3 · new

Ana persuaded her brother to help her move.

A) Ana had her brother helped.

B) Ana got her brother to help.

C) Ana got her brother help.

Why: get + person + to + verb = persuade. A uses a past participle for a person (it would mean someone helped her brother); C drops to (only have + person takes the base verb).

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (5.2)

"I had repaired my car" (for a garage repair) · "I got fixed my phone" · "I made the mechanic repair my car" (sounds like force) · "The hotel will have the porter to bring..." · "I got my landlord fix it" · "I had it fix" (lost ending) · "I cut my hair" for a salon visit (fine in casual speech; upgrade to I got my hair cut / got a haircut).
Correct word order every time (it changes the meaning); treat "I cut my hair at the salon" as an upgrade, not an error.

5.3 · DETERMINERS & QUANTIFIERS (C16)

◆ WARMER – PRECISION PATH BOARD GAME (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET F)

3	By the time you arrive , we'll have eaten.
4	I had my oil changed yesterday. / I got my oil changed...
7	I had my phone repaired at the mall.
8	Will you be using the meeting room at two?
10	A misfortune (someone stole it).

11	will be eating
12	...to fix / replace / repaint... (got + person + to + verb)
13	I'll have finished the report by Friday.
15	We had our menu translated. / We got our menu translated.
17	The hotel will have the porter bring your bags. / ...will get the porter to bring ...
19	I had my hair cut. (past) / I've had my hair cut. (present perfect)
21	In 2030 I will have finished my training.
22	Either, with a reason: "I painted it myself" (plain verb) or "I had it painted" (causative).

Squares 2, 5, 6, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 23 are open: accept any sentence with the target form. Use the group as judges; you settle disputes.

◆ EXERCISE 1 – CIRCLE THE CORRECT WORD

1 the whole · 2 Every · 3 each (two ears) · 4 All (all + the + plural) · 5 Most (no the → no of) · 6 neither (two) · 7 none (five) · 8 every (almost every)

Note on 1: "all morning" (without the) is also correct, but it isn't an option. Note on 5: "Most of the people in my building" would also be correct.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – FIX THE MISTAKE

- 1 Every person in the office has a key card. (or: All the people in the office have key cards.)
- 2 Each of the apartments has a balcony.
- 3 Neither of the buses goes downtown.
- 4 Most students finished early. / Most of the students finished early.
- 5 Both of the options are fine with me. (or: Either option is fine with me.)
- 6 It snowed all week. / It snowed the whole week.

In 3, "Neither of the buses go" is common in speech; the item asks for formal English, so the answer is goes. In 5, Either option is fine is the most natural way to say "I don't mind which": accept it.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – TWO APARTMENTS

- 1 Both apartments cost $1,400 a month.
- 2 Neither apartment has parking.
- 3 Neither of them allows pets.

4 Both apartments are near a bus stop, so either one would work for my commute.

5 They are both available on June 1.

6 Neither the Oak Street apartment nor the Elm Avenue one allows pets.

Stretch talk: "Which would you choose?" "The Oak Street one, because it has two bedrooms and costs the same."
Accept 3 "Neither of them allow" in speech only.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – OF OR NO OF?

1 ✗ (general: most people) · 2 of (+ the) · 3 of (+ pronoun) · 4 ✗ (general: all children) · 5 of (+ my) · 6 of (+ pronoun)

Note on 4: "All of children" is always wrong; "all of the children in the school" is correct (specific). With all + the, of is optional: "all (of) the books."

◆ EXERCISE 5 – STAFF SURVEY (SCRIPT 5.3-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
All	Most	Each	None	Neither	Every · whole	Both

Accept 3 Every (the meaning is the same here). Follow-up questions: "How many people answered?" (40, all the staff) · "How many want the schedule in March?" (31, most of them) · "What happens with parking?" (Nothing changes: neither option was popular.)

◆ DIALOGUE

Determiners: both places · neither option · either choice · neither of them · both of us · each one. Singular verbs: neither option is · either choice means · neither of them is, because neither and either look at one option at a time. both ... have / agree are plural.

◆ SPEAKING – CLASS SURVEY & REPORT (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET E)

Open. Check: totals add up to the number of people in the room · at least one all / most / none of us, one every / each, one both / neither / either · singular verbs after every, each, neither, either · of only before us / the · no names. Model (card 4, coffee or tea, 14 people): "We asked every person in the class whether they drink coffee, tea, both, or neither. Most of us (eight people) drink coffee, and four of us drink both. Only one of us drinks neither, and one person passed. Each coffee drinker has at least one cup before class. Neither of us (in our pair) drinks tea." Upgrades to praise: the majority of us, just over half of us, only a handful of us, not a single person.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which sentence is correct?

A) Every student has a locker.

B) Every people have a locker.

C) Every student have a locker.

Why: every takes a singular noun and a singular verb. B uses a plural noun (people); C has a plural verb.

Q2

In careful, formal English, which is correct?

A) Neither of the plans is ready.

B) Neither the plans are ready.

C) Both of the plans is ready.

Why: neither of + plural noun + singular verb in formal English. B is missing of; C gives both a singular verb.

Q3 · new

Which sentence is correct?

A) It rained all the day.

B) Most of people here walk to work.

C) Each of the rooms has a window.

Why: each of + the + plural noun + singular verb. A should be "all day / the whole day"; B should be "most people" or "most of the people."

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (5.3)

"Every people..." · "Each students..." · "Every student have..." · "Most of people / most of students" · "The most of us..." · "all the day" · "the whole cakes" · "both of my three brothers" · "All us / most them" (no of before a pronoun) · "None came" for people (→ nobody came / none of them came). Correct every / each + plural noun and "most of" + bare noun every time; in speech, don't correct neither of them are or none of us were, which are normal English.

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark meaning first, then form, then range. A word-formation answer is correct when it is the right part of speech and the right meaning (positive or negative, singular or plural) and is spelled correctly; give half credit for the right job with a small spelling slip (succesful). A comparison is correct when the size of the difference matches the facts and than / as is right. An indirect question is correct when it has statement word order and no do / does / did. Be generous about options: if and whether are both correct (except directly before or not); far / much / a lot are interchangeable, as are slightly / a bit / a little; a question mark after I was wondering if... is acceptable; contractions are fine. American English is the model; British forms (-ise spellings, practise, flat, motorway, film, queue) are acceptable when a learner uses them.

6.1 • WORD FORMATION (C17)

🔹 🗣️ WHERE'S THE STRESS? (SCRIPT 6.1-A)

1 PHOtograph • phoTOgraphy • photoGRAPHic • phoTOgrapher • 2 eCOmomy • ecoNOMIC • eCONomist • 3 creATE • creAtion • creATive • creaTivity • 4 EDucate • eduCAtion • 5 comPETE • compeTition • comPETitive • 6 deCIDE • deCision • deCisive.

The rule: -tion, -ic and -ity put the stress on the syllable just before them. Accept any wording that says this ("the syllable before -tion is strong"). Note that create and creative are already stressed on the second syllable (creATE, creATive); only -ity moves it.

🔹 EXERCISE 1 – THE WORD FAMILY GRID

Base	Noun	Verb	Adjective	Adverb	Negative
decide	decision	decide	decisive	decisively	indecisive • undecided
succeed	success	succeed	successful	successfully	unsuccessful(ly)

create *	creation · creativity · (creator)	create	creative	creatively	uncreative
strong	strength	strengthen	strong	strongly	— (opposite: weak)
compete	competition · (competitor)	compete	competitive	competitively	uncompetitive rely	reliability · (reliance)	rely (on)	reliable	reliably	unreliable
care	care	care	careful · careless	carefully · carelessly	careless (the -less is the opposite) attract	attraction	attract	attractive	attractively	unattractive
employ *	employment · employer · employee	employ	employed · (employable)	—	unemployed · unemployment responsible	responsibility	— (take responsibility)	responsible	responsibly	irresponsible

* Two nouns: creation = the act of creating or the thing created (a new creation); creativity = the quality of being creative. employer = the person or company that gives work; employee = the person who works; employment = having work. Words in (brackets) are good extras, not required. Wrong: "responsible," "unresponsible," "successful," "strongness," "decision."

◆ EXERCISE 2 – FORM THE CORRECT WORD

1 success (N) · 2 creative (ADJ) · 3 clearly (ADV) · 4 strengthen (V) · 5 failure (N) · 6 information (N) · 7 helpful (ADJ) · 8 modernize (V; modernise accepted).

Watch for: 1 "successful" (the gap follows a huge, so a noun) · 5 "fail" (a verb after a complete) · 6 "informations" (uncountable). In 7, "helpless" is a real word but the wrong meaning.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – NEGATIVE PREFIXES

1 impossible (before p) · 2 illegal (before l) · 3 disagree · 4 unreadable (illegible is also a real word for handwriting; mention it to strong learners) · 5 irresponsible (before r) · 6 incorrect · 7 non-smoker · 8 unreliable.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – OTHER PREFIXES

1 misunderstood · 2 undercooked · 3 rewrite · 4 overworked · 5 preview · 6 misspelled (misspelt is British) · 7 underpaid.

In 6, the double s in misspelled is a common spelling error: mis + spelled.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – A COMEBACK STORY

1 preparation (N) · 2 failure (N) · 3 confusing (ADJ) · 4 unreasonable (ADJ, negative) · 5 disappointed (ADJ) · 6 decisively (ADV) · 7 improvements (N, plural) · 8 patiently (ADV) · 9 success (N) · 10 employees (N, plural).

Common errors: 3 "confused" (the customers were confused; the menu was confusing) · 4 "reasonable" (the text says far too high, so the meaning is negative) · 5 "disappointing" · 7 "improvement" (several needs a plural) · 10 "employers" (they are the employers; the workers are employees).

◆ DIALOGUE & SPEAKING – COMEBACK STORY, BINGO, WORD FAMILY MAP

Dialogue: modernize (V after should), decisive / indecisive (ADJ before a noun), successfully (ADV: how we finished).

Comeback Story (open): check six or more family forms, each in the right job. Model: "The community garden was a complete failure the first year: the heavy rain flooded everything, and we felt really disappointed. But our organizer acted decisively. She made a quick decision to build raised beds, and the improvement was amazing. The second year was a huge success: we successfully grew enough tomatoes for the whole street." Bingo: no fixed answers; a mark counts only if the form was used correctly. Word family map (open): check each column for the right part of speech and a real negative.

◆ PREFIX/SUFFIX RACE (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET D)

Round 1 • Flip it: (T reads possible, legal, regular, honest, agree, fair, correct, kind) impossible · illegal · irregular · dishonest · disagree · unfair · incorrect · unkind. Round 2 • accepted words (1 point each): impossible, possibly, possibility · illegal, legally, illegally, legality, legalize · irregular, regularly, irregularly, regularity · dishonest, honestly, dishonestly · disagree, agreement, disagreement, agreeable, disagreeable · unfair, fairly, unfairly, fairness, unfairness · incorrect, correctly, incorrectly, correction, correctness · misunderstand, understandable · overcook, undercook, precook, cooker · repay, overpay, underpay, prepay, payment, repayment, overpayment, payable, nonpayment · rewrite, writer · review, preview, viewer, reviewer · careful, careless, carefully, carelessly, carefulness, carelessness · hopeful, hopeless, hopefully, hopelessly, hopelessness · helpful, helpless, unhelpful, helpfully, helplessly, helper, helpfulness · useful, useless, usefully, user, reuse, misuse, overuse, usable, reusable, unusable, usefulness · unkind, kindness, kindly, unkindly, unkindness · creation, creative, creatively, creativity, recreate, uncreative · reliable, unreliable, reliably, reliability · dangerous, dangerously. Spelling changes (possible → possibility, rely → reliable) are fine: the cards show the parts, not the spelling. –1 point (invented): beautiful, impossible, illegal, unhappy, helpness, carement, hopeness, kindful, dangerless, reliful, dishonest. Round 3 • Fit it (Script 6.1-B): 1 improvement · 2 unreliable · 3 creativity · 4 strengthen · 5 competitive · 6 misunderstood · 7 carelessly · 8 employees.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

"She handled the crisis very ____."

A) decision

B) decisive

C) decisively

Why: the gap describes how she handled it (a verb), so it needs an adverb (-ly). Decision is a noun; decisive is an adjective and would describe a noun.

Q2

Which negative form of responsible is correct?

A) unresponsible

B) irresponsible

C) irresponsible

Why: in- becomes ir- before an r: irregular, irresponsible. im- is only for m and p.

Q3 · new

"Your help was ____." (= extremely useful)

A) valueless

B) invaluable

C) unvaluable

Why: invaluable is a "surprise" word: the in- does not mean "not"; it means too valuable to measure. Valueless means worthless (the opposite), and "unvaluable" doesn't exist.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (6.1)

"a success project" · "He explained very clear" · "unpossible," "inlegal," "unresponsible" · "disfortunate," "discomfortable" (Spanish / Portuguese des-) · "carefull / successfull / hopefully" · "informations," "advices" · "The team was disappointing" (= disappointed) · the same stress for the whole family (PHOtography, eCOmic) · invented forms ("helpness," "beautiless"). Correct the part of speech every time; treat stress as a listening focus first.

6.2 · ADVANCED COMPARISON (C18)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – COMPLETE THE COMPARISON

1 cheaper · 2 as (or so) · 3 as · 4 as · 5 warmer · 6 harder · 7 to ... from · 8 more carefully.

Also correct: 7 different than (common in American English; different from is the safe standard). Wrong: 1 "more cheap" · 4 "than" · 7 "similar with" · 8 "carefuller" / "more careful" (an adverb is needed: how to drive).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – THE MORE..., THE MORE...

1 the more · 2 The harder · 3 better · 4 less · 5 bigger · 6 less.

4 "more" is grammatical but changes the meaning; accept it only if the learner means it. 6 traffic is uncountable, so less (not "fewer"). Personal endings are open: check the two thes and two comparatives ("The more I cook, the more I enjoy it.").

◆ EXERCISE 3 – HOW BIG IS THE DIFFERENCE? (SCRIPT 6.2-A)

1	2	3	4	5	6
big (far)	small (slightly)	much less (nowhere near as)	almost the same (not quite as)	big (considerably)	equal (as... as)

◆ EXERCISE 4 – REWRITE IT

- 1 The new model is far / much / a lot / considerably better than the old one.
- 2 The blue jacket is slightly cheaper than the black one.
- 3 The more you sleep, the better you feel.
- 4 The movie was not nearly as good as the book. (or: wasn't nearly as good as)
- 5 The Kestrel is twice as expensive as the Nova. (or: The Nova is half as expensive as the Kestrel.)
- 6 Rent is getting more and more expensive (every year). (or: higher and higher)

Wording may vary; the structure must match. In 1, "very better" is wrong. In 5, "two times more expensive" is heard in real English but is not the target here.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FIND THE MISTAKE

- 1 This one is much / far cheaper.
- 2 Your bag is the same as mine.
- 3 He runs faster than his brother. (or more quickly)
- 4 Millbrook is smaller than Riverton.
- 5 The more you try, the better it gets.

6 The Kestrel is twice as expensive as the Nova.

◆ DIALOGUE – THE COMPARISONS

far quicker (big difference) · nowhere near as pretty (much less) · twice as long (multiple) · The earlier we leave, the less traffic we'll hit (parallel) · more and more beautiful (trend) · the farther south you go (the second half of a parallel: accept further) · slightly slower (small) · a lot more · a little more · not quite as cheap (almost) · the same car, the same trip · a much better view · The earlier we set off, the better. That's 10+ structures; any count of 8 or more is a good answer.

◆ SPEAKING – COMPARE & RECOMMEND (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET E)

Target sentences the numbers are built for: Phones: The Kestrel is twice as expensive as the Nova ($640 / $320). The Kestrel is only slightly heavier (185 g / 180 g). The Kestrel has twice as much storage. The Nova's battery lasts a bit longer (48 h / 46 h). The Kestrel's camera is far better (48 MP / 12 MP: four times as many megapixels). Jobs: The warehouse job pays slightly more ($21.00 / $20.50). The delivery job's commute is far shorter; the warehouse commute is more than four times as long (45 / 10 min). The delivery job has nowhere near as much paid training (3 days / 2 weeks). Towns: Riverton is fifteen times as big as Millbrook (900,000 / 60,000). Rent in Riverton is considerably higher but not quite twice as high ($1,500 / $950). Buses in Millbrook are nowhere near as frequent (every hour / every 10 minutes). Rent in Riverton has become more and more expensive ($900 in 2018 → $1,500). Recommendations are open: mark the reasoning and the language, not the choice. Model: "For a student on a tight budget, I'd recommend the Nova. It's half as expensive as the Kestrel, and it's only slightly smaller. The Kestrel's camera is far better, but the more you pay, the less you have for books. So overall, the Nova is much better value."

◆ SELF - CHECK

Q1

Which sentence is correct?

A) This one is very more expensive.

B) This one is far more expensive.

C) This one is more expensive as that.

Why: far / much intensify a comparative; very can't. C mixes up than and as: after more, use than.

Q2

"___ you practice, the more confident you become."

A) The more

B) More

C) The much

Why: both halves need the + a comparative. B drops the; much in C is not a comparative.

Q3 · new

$320 vs $640. Which sentence is correct?

A) The Kestrel is twice more expensive than the Nova.

B) The Kestrel is twice as expensive than the Nova.

C) The Kestrel is twice as expensive as the Nova.

Why: multiples go with as... as. A is common in speech but unclear (twice more could mean three times the price); B mixes as and than.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (6.2)

"very cheaper" / "very more expensive" · "more better," "more faster" · "bigger that" (Spanish / Portuguese que) · "as big than" (French que) · "the same than / the same like" · "More you practice, better you get" · "two times more expensive than" · "It's cheap than mine" · "The more you practice, the more you get better" (acceptable meaning; recast to the better you get) · fewer vs less with uncountable nouns (less traffic). For range, notice learners who use only much: push considerably, slightly, nowhere near as.

6.3 · INDIRECT & NEGATIVE QUESTIONS (C19)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE FRONT-DESK CALL (SCRIPT 6.3-A)

The caller wants to join the gym (and find out about a beginners' class). Questions: 1 what time the gym opens · 2 how much a monthly membership costs · 3 whether there are any classes for beginners · 4 if towels are provided · 5 where I can park (/ where he or she can park) · 6 whether I can try a class for free.

Accept the full question with its opener. Accept if / whether either way. The receptionist's negative question at the end, "Isn't the annual plan better value, though?", is an upsell (persuading, falling tone).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – MAKE IT INDIRECT

1 is · 2 opens (drop does) · 3 cost (drop did; cost is the same in the past) · 4 if / whether · 5 whether / if · 6 left (drop did; the past moves onto the verb).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – REWRITE AS POLITE QUESTIONS

- 1 Could you tell me where the nearest bank is?
- 2 Do you know what time the movie starts?
- 3 I was wondering if / whether this seat is free. (question mark also accepted)
- 4 Would you mind telling me how long the trip takes?
- 5 Do you have any idea when my sofa will arrive?
- 6 Could you tell me whether or not you deliver on weekends? / ...if you deliver on weekends or not?

Wrong: "...where is the nearest bank?" · "...what time does the movie start?" · "...if or not you deliver" (with if, or not goes at the end). In 5, will stays (it's not do / does / did); only the order changes.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – NEGATIVE QUESTIONS

A. 1 Didn't · 2 Isn't · 3 Wouldn't it be easier to take the train? (also: Isn't it easier...? / Don't you think it would be easier...?) · 4 Doesn't the store close at six? (also: Isn't the store closing... / Doesn't it close...)

B. 5 Yes, I did. · 6 No, I haven't. · 7 No, it isn't. · 8 Yes, I do. (I love it!)

Intonation for the pair work: 1 ↗ (surprise) · 2 ↘ (admire, agree with me) · 3 ↘ (suggestion) · 4 ↗ (checking a belief).

The key teaching point in B: yes = true / happened, whatever the question looks like. "No, I did" and "Yes, I didn't" are always wrong.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – SUBJECT OR OBJECT? (SCRIPT 6.3-C)

- 1 Who opened the fridge at nine? (subject: no did)
- 2 What did the team buy? (object)
- 3 What happened at twelve? (subject)
- 4 Who did Ms. Tran call? (object; Whom is very formal: not needed)
- 5 Who called a meeting? (subject)
- 6 broke · 7 happened

Wrong: "Who did open the fridge?" · "What did happen?" · "What the team bought?" (object questions need did and question order).

◆ DIALOGUE – LAKEVIEW COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Indirect questions: I was wondering if you still had places... · Could you tell me when the class starts? · do you know how much it costs? · Would you mind telling me whether I need to take a test first? Negative questions: Didn't you see the price on our website? ↗ (surprise; answered by the facts: "No, I didn't.") · Don't you think it would be easier to register online? ↘ (suggestion) · isn't it better to pay in person? ↘ or ↗ (the caller is persuading or checking: both readings are fine). Note: had in "if you still had places" is a polite past, not a real past time; mention it only if learners ask.

◆ SPEAKING – POLITE ENQUIRY ROLE-PLAY (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET G)

Open task: mark with the observer checklist (6 indirect questions, statement order, no do / did, if / whether, a negative question, polite voice). Model for the gym card: "Hi, I was wondering if you could help me. Could you tell me what time the pool opens on Saturdays? ... Do you know whether there are lessons for adults? ... Would you mind telling me how much a family membership costs? ... Isn't it cheaper if we pay for the year? ... Do you have any idea where I can buy a lock for the locker? ... And could you tell me if I need to bring a photo?" Model interview lines: Interviewer: "Could you tell me what you enjoy most about working with customers?" · "Didn't you say you'd trained new staff at your last job?" (Candidate: "Yes, I did. I trained four new servers.") · "Haven't you worked weekends before?" (per the card: "No, I haven't, but I'm happy to."). Candidate: "Could you tell me what a typical shift looks like?" · "I was wondering whether there's any paid training." · "Do you know when you'll make a decision?"

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which indirect question is correct?

A) Could you tell me where does the station is?

B) Could you tell me where is the station?

C) Could you tell me where the station is?

Why: after the opener, use statement order (subject + verb: the station is). B keeps the question order; A adds a does that doesn't belong.

Q2

Which is a correct subject question?

A) Who broke the window?

B) Who did broke the window?

C) Who did break the window?

Why: who is the doer, so there is no auxiliary: the past verb broke is enough. B doubles the past. C is only possible as a strong, emphatic question ("Well, who DID break it, then?"); it is not the normal form.

Q3 · new

"Didn't you get my message?" You did get it.

A) "No, I did."

B) "Yes, I did."

C) "Yes, I didn't."

Why: English answers by the facts. You got it, so yes, and the short answer must match: Yes, I did. A and C mix a yes/no with the opposite short answer.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (6.3)

"Could you tell me where is the station?" · "Do you know what time does it open?" · "Do you know is the shop open?" (no if) · "...if or not they're open" · "Who did call you?" / "What did happen?" · "Didn't you go?" "Yes." (meaning I didn't) · "No, I did" · a flat, falling voice on a polite question (sounds impatient) · negative questions used as complaints ("Didn't you read my email?" ↘). Correct word order every time; give tone feedback as a model ("Listen: Could you tell me when it closes? ↗"), never as a judgment of the learner's personality.

Module 7 — Communicating with Style: Answers

Answers to every Module 7 workbook exercise and self-check question, with the "why," acceptable alternatives, model answers for the open tasks (the manager email, the Register Switch Workshop, the anecdote plan, the pitch), the classroom-materials answers (register-sort strips, listening scripts, Persuasion Bingo), and the errors you can expect to hear most.

Lessons 7.1–7.3

Classes C20–C22

9 self-check items

14 exercises

MARKING PRINCIPLE

This module is about effect: does the message fit the reader, does the story hold the listener, does the case persuade? Mark appropriacy first, then accuracy, then range. A formal email with one small grammar slip but a consistent register and a clear request is a success; a grammatically perfect email that closes with "Cheers!" is not. For open tasks, accept any answer that performs the function (a reaction that shows interest, a sentence that really is a contrast). American English is the model. Accept British forms when a learner uses them (enquire / enquiry, Mr without a period, Yours sincerely / Yours faithfully, full stop, primary school, practise, colour). In the US, Sincerely, (or Best regards,) is correct after any greeting; don't mark "Yours faithfully" wrong, but tell the learner it's the UK convention.

7.1 • REGISTER — FORMAL VS INFORMAL ENGLISH (C20)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – TURN THE DIAL UP

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
request	postpone	discover	require	receive	inform	assist	however	therefore

Also accept: 3 establish, ascertain • 5 obtain (more for things you make an effort to get: "obtain a permit") • 6 notify • 8 nevertheless • 9 consequently, as a result. Not accepted: 2 "delay" (possible, but different: a delay is usually not planned) • 7 "support" (a different meaning in most contexts).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – INFORMAL, NEUTRAL OR FORMAL?

1 I (gimme) • 2 N (polite could, but everyday words) • 3 F (set phrase, at your earliest convenience) • 4 I • 5 F (unfortunately, full forms, did not match the description) • 6 I (Just checking, are we still on) • 7 N (polite but contracted: typical manager email or spoken) • 8 F (do not hesitate, should you require).

Accept 2 as N or F, and 7 as N or F, if the learner gives a reason ("I'm afraid is polite, but the contractions make it less formal"). The discussion matters more than the letter.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – THE INQUIRY EMAIL

1 Dear · 2 inquire · 3 available · 4 Unfortunately · 5 grateful · 6 attached · 7 hearing · 8 Sincerely

Also accept 2 enquire (UK) and 8 Yours faithfully (UK: the greeting has no personal name). Point out the five parts: greeting (1) · reason (2) · detail (3–4) · request (5–6) · closing + sign-off (7–8).

◆ EXERCISE 4 – SOFTEN THE REQUEST (MODEL ANSWERS)

- 1 Would it be possible to take Friday off? / ...for me to have Friday off?
- 2 Could you (possibly) send me the schedule?
- 3 Would you mind explaining this form to me?
- 4 I was wondering whether I could leave early today. / ...whether it would be OK if I left early today.
- 5 Would it be possible to be seated near a window? / ...to have a table near the window?

Wrong: 3 "Would you mind to explain..." (mind + -ing) · 4 "I was wondering whether can I leave" (statement word order after whether: C19!) · 1 "Would it be possible that you give me..." (awkward; use to + verb). Also check the voice: a gentle fall-rise, not a flat order.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – ANA'S EMAIL TO MR. PATEL (MODEL)

Subject: Saturday shift, May 10

Dear Mr. Patel,

I am writing to let you know that I am unable to work my shift on Saturday, May 10, due to a family commitment.

Maria Lopez has kindly agreed to cover the shift for me. I would be grateful if you could update the schedule accordingly, and I would appreciate it if you could also inform Dan.

Thank you for your understanding.

Sincerely,

Ana Silva

Wording will vary. Check: a greeting with a title and surname (or "Hi Mr. Patel," in a friendly workplace: acceptable, one step down the dial), a clear reason in the first line, no contractions, no emoji or abbreviations (u, thx, tho), a polite request frame, and a sign-off. "Family stuff" → a family commitment / a personal matter: learners don't need to explain further. Also accept Best regards, or Kind regards.

◆ DIALOGUE – THREE THINGS THAT MAKE THE SECOND CONVERSATION MORE FORMAL

Any three: an opening that asks permission (Excuse me, Mr. Patel. Do you have a moment? vs got a sec?) · a title + surname · the tentative frame I was wondering whether it might be possible to... · full sentences instead of fragments (Deal.) · Certainly instead of Yeah · Thank you very much instead of You're a lifesaver! · no slang (got a sec, any chance). Note: Ana still uses contractions (He's, I'll): that's normal in polite speech.

◆ SPEAKING – REGISTER SWITCH WORKSHOP (MODEL FOR CARD 1: THE SATURDAY SHIFT)

A • Text to a friend	B • Email to a manager	C • Formal letter to an organization
Hey! Can't do Sat ☹️ Maria's covering. Can you let Dan know? Thanks!!	Hi Mr. Patel, I'm afraid I won't be able to work on Saturday. Maria has agreed to cover my shift. Could you please update the schedule? Thank you, Ana	(Card 1 has no organization: learners may skip C, or write to the staffing agency: "Dear Staffing Team: I am writing to inform you that I will be unable to...")

Models for all 8 cards are printed small on the back of each situation card (classroom materials, set C). Mark the three versions as a set: are they clearly different, and does each hold one register? The manager email (B) is often the most useful and the hardest: warm but professional, contractions possible, no slang.

◆ REGISTER-SORT STRIPS (CLASSROOM MATERIALS, SET D)

Informal	Hey! • Gimme a shout. • Can't make it. • Cheers! • Lemme know. • Sorry, my bad!
Neutral	Hi Ms. Reyes, • Could you let me know? • I'm afraid I can't make it. • Thanks for your help. • Sorry for the delay. • Talk to you soon.
Formal	Dear Sir or Madam, • I would be grateful if you could inform me... • I regret that I will be unable to attend. • Thank you for your assistance. • Please accept my apologies for the delay. • I look forward to hearing from you.

Neutral / formal borderline items are good for discussion. Accept a different column with a good reason.

◆ LISTENING – SCRIPT 7.1-A (TWO VOICEMAILS) & 7.1-B (DICTATION)

7.1-A differences (any three): Hey Sam, it's me / Hello, Mr. Patel, this is Ana Silva from the evening team • I can't make it Saturday / I'm afraid I won't be able to work my shift on Saturday • can you cover? / I was wondering whether it would be possible to swap with Sam • you're the best / thank you for your understanding • Lemme know! / Please let me know if that works for you • speed and reductions in the first; slower, full forms in the second. 7.1-B: see the script for the four sentences; check grateful (not "greatful"), convenience, hesitate, inquire.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

You're writing to a British company and you began with "Dear Ms Ford,". Which sign-off follows the British rule?

A) Yours sincerely,

B) Yours faithfully,

C) Cheers,

Why: in UK letters, a named greeting → Yours sincerely; "Dear Sir or Madam" → Yours faithfully. In US English, Sincerely, works after any greeting. Cheers is informal.

Q2

Which sentence is the most appropriate for a formal email?

A) Hi, I just wanna know if you've got any spots left.

B) I am writing to inquire whether any places are still available.

C) Gimme the info when you can, thanks!

Why: full forms, a formal verb (inquire) and a complete, polite sentence. A and C use contractions and slang (wanna, gimme).

Q3 · new

Which message mixes registers?

A) Hi Jo! Running late, save me a seat?

B) Dear Mr. Lee: I am writing to confirm my appointment on June 4. Sincerely, Mina Cho

C) Dear Ms. Ortiz, I am writing to request a copy of my contract. Thanks a bunch, see ya!

Why: C opens formally and closes with slang. A is consistently informal and B is consistently formal: both fit their readers.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (7.1)

"I am writing for ask / for asking..." · "I would be grateful if you can..." · "Would you mind to send..." · "Dear Mr. Daniel" (title + first name) · "Dear Sir or Madam ... Cheers" · contractions in the formal letter · "Hi" + "Yours faithfully" · a formal letter that never says what it wants until the last line · "I want a refund" (too direct) · stiff over-formality in the text to a friend ("I would be grateful if you could save me a seat"). Also "greatful" in writing. Praise every learner whose three versions are clearly different.

7.2 · TELLING STORIES & ANECDOTES (C21)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – ORDER THE ANECDOTE

a 5 · b 2 · c 6 · d 1 · e 3 · f 4

So the story reads: d (hook) → b (scene: was carrying) → e (starting situation: At first) → f (Just as) → a (the twist: All of a sudden) → c (the ending: To cut a long story short... that's why). Also accept b and d swapped only if the learner notices that "The funniest thing..." works better as the hook.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – THE BEST CONNECTOR

1 At first · 2 Just as · 3 A few minutes later · 4 All of a sudden · 5 before I knew it · 6 In the end

In 4, Suddenly, is also correct. Never both ("Suddenly, all of a sudden...").

◆ EXERCISE 3 – PAST FORMS

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
was raining	was walking	had just bought	got	ran	stepped	had thought / thought	laughed

1–2 are the scene (background, in progress); 3 is the backstory (before the scene); 4–6 and 8 are the events. In 7 both are correct: had thought emphasizes that the mistake came before he stepped back. Also accept 8 were laughing (describing the journey). Wrong: 1 "rained" (acceptable, but loses the "scene" effect: mark with a note) · 3 "just bought" (US speakers do say this informally; the target is had just bought) · 4 "was getting."

◆ EXERCISE 4 – ABSOLUTELY + EXTREME ADJECTIVE

1 absolutely starving · 2 absolutely thrilled · 3 absolutely freezing · 4 absolutely exhausted · 5 absolutely terrified · 6 absolutely furious really is also fine with extreme adjectives (really furious). Wrong: "very furious," "absolutely angry."

◆ EXERCISE 5 – LISTENER REACTIONS (SAMPLES)

1 "Oh no! What did you do?" / "You're kidding!" · 2 "No way! How embarrassing!" / "You must have been mortified!" · 3 "No way! What are the chances?" / "What a small world!" · 4 "That's hilarious! You have to tell me the whole thing!"

Any short, genuine reaction that shows interest and invites the teller to continue. Not accepted: flat or formal responses ("I see. That is interesting.") or changing the subject.

◆ DIALOGUE – PRIYA & TOM

Hook: "You'll never guess what happened to me on the way to the interview this morning." · Scene: "I was running a bit late, and I was wearing my best suit." · Historic present: "All of a sudden I'm absolutely soaked... this old man just looks at me and goes..." · Direct speech: "Lovely weather for it!" · Ending: "To cut a long story short, I got the job. And that's why I always carry an umbrella now. Lesson learned!" Tom's reactions: Go on. · Oh no! · No way! What did you do? · You're kidding!

◆ SPEAKING – ANECDOTE CIRCLE (MODEL PLAN, PROMPT CARD "THE WRONG BUS")

Hook	funniest thing · last week · bus
Scene	was reading on my phone · rush hour · number 12
Events	at first normal → a few min later: fields?! → just as I stood up, driver...
Climax	driver goes, "Last stop: the airport!"
Ending	in the end · taxi back · $40 · that's why I look up now

The circle is not marked. Listen for: a hook, a past continuous scene, three or more different connectors, one line of direct speech or historic present, and a landed ending. Keep "Fix it / Upgrade it" notes.

◆ LISTENING – SCRIPT 7.2-A (FLAT VS SHAPED) & 7.2-B (REACTIONS)

7.2-A: the shaped version adds a hook (You'll never guess...), a scene (I was walking across town...), backstory (I'd been dreaming about...), just as, direct speech (the owner goes, "Sorry, we're closed!"), emphasis (absolutely starving, right in my face) and an ending with a point (And that's why I always call first now). 7.2-B reactions at each  (any natural one):  1 "Go on!" / "What happened?" ·  2 "Oh no!" ·  3 "No way!" / "You're kidding!" ·  4 "What did you do?" / "Then what?" ·  5 "That's hilarious!" / "What a story!"

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which phrase best opens a spoken anecdote?

A) In the end, I went home.

B) You'll never guess what happened to me.

C) And that's why I was late.

 Why: B is a hook: it tells the listener a story is coming. A and C are ending phrases.

Q2

Your friend says, "...and when I looked in my bag, my wallet was gone." What's the most natural reaction?

A) Oh no! What did you do?

B) I see. That is interesting.

C) Anyway, what are you having for lunch?

 Why: A shows sympathy and invites the teller to continue. B sounds cold (wrong register!), and C ignores the story.

Q3 · new

Which sentence sets the scene for a story?

A) In the end, we all went home.

B) No way! That's hilarious!

C) I was waiting for the elevator when the fire alarm went off.

 Why: the past continuous (was waiting) gives the background, and when + past simple brings in the first event. A is an ending; B is a listener's reaction.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (7.2)

"When I walked home, it started to rain." (scene → was walking) · a whole story in the present simple with no past forms (not the same as the chosen historic present) · "and then... and then... and then..." · "Suddenly, all of a sudden" · "very furious / very exhausted" · "He said me, '...'" · "I was so embarrassing" (→ embarrassed) · "Before I knew" (→ Before I knew it) · no ending ("...so, yeah"). Correct the -ed / -ing adjective and the past continuous scene every time; treat the rest as range upgrades.

7.3 · MAKING A CASE — PRESENTATIONS & PERSUASION (C22)

◆ EXERCISE 1 — PRESENTATION PHRASES

1 cover · 2 begin · 3 brings · 4 Take · 5 show · 6 sum

Also accept: 1 discuss, look at, focus on · 2 start · 5 suggest, indicate. Wrong: 5 "shows" (plural subject figures) · 1 "talk" (needs about).

◆ EXERCISE 2 — NAME THE TECHNIQUE

1 RQ · 2 C · 3 3 · 4 CC · 5 A · 6 C

5 "Imagine..." speaks directly to the listener (appeal). 6 sets two choices against each other (contrast); accept A if the learner points to we. 1 is a rhetorical question: nobody is expected to answer.

◆ EXERCISE 3 — CONCEDE AND COUNTER

1 d · 2 e · 3 c · 4 a · 5 b

Punctuation: after a semicolon, the counter starts with lowercase however / that said / nevertheless; after a period, with a capital (4 → a). While it's true that..., takes a comma and no second connector (2 → e).

◆ EXERCISE 4 — HANDLING QUESTIONS

1 B · 2 A · 3 B · 4 C

1: never invent a figure; offering to follow up is professional. 2: checking your understanding buys time and avoids answering the wrong question. 3: concede, then counter. A is combative, C gives up the case. 4: check back politely before moving on.

◆ DIALOGUE — LEILA'S MOVES

Tripling: "greener, safer and friendlier" · Rhetorical question: "Wouldn't we all rather look at vegetables than trash?" ·

Concede-counter: "Admittedly, summer is the hardest time. That said, eighteen families have already signed up..."

Also: signpost (To sum up), handling phrases (That's a good question · I'll send the details · Does that answer your question?), and honesty about the figure.

◆ SPEAKING — THE PITCH PANEL (MODEL, TOPIC CARD 1: BIKE PARKING AT WORK)

S1: Good morning. Today we'll cover a small problem with a simple solution. First, the problem: twelve of us cycle to work, and there's nowhere safe to lock a bike. Last month, two bikes were stolen.

S2: Our proposal is a covered bike rack for twenty bikes next to the side entrance. The main advantage is health: research suggests regular cyclists take fewer sick days. Take, for example, our coworker Sam: since he started cycling, he hasn't missed a single day. It's healthier, cheaper and greener.

S3: Admittedly, it costs about $1,500. That said, that's less than we spend on parking permits in two months. It's not a cost; it's an investment. So to sum up: safer bikes, healthier staff. We're asking you to approve the rack this month. Thank you. We're happy to take questions.

The pitch is not marked with a score. Use the Persuasion Bingo grids and your notes for feedback: signposts, a claim with evidence, at least one technique, one concede-counter, a call to action, and a calm first line to each question.

◆ LISTENING – SCRIPT 7.3-A (MODEL PITCH) & PERSUASION BINGO

Signposts: Today I'd like to... · First,... · Moving on to... · For instance... · To sum up... · Argue: The main advantage is... · Research suggests... · Rhetorical question: Wouldn't it be great to arrive at work already awake? · Tripling: healthier, cheaper and greener · Contrast: A safe place to park isn't a luxury; it's basic. · Concede-counter: Admittedly, it isn't free. That said,... · Appeal: Think about... · Call to action: So we're asking you to... · Every square on bingo version A and 7 of 9 on version B are heard in 7.3-A (B's "Take, for example" and "That's a good question" come only in 7.3-B).

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which sentence best concedes and counters an objection?

A) Admittedly, it's expensive; however, it saves money long-term.

B) This is simply the best option, period.

C) Yes, it's expensive, and that's a real problem.

Why: A admits the objection, then pushes back with a stronger point. B ignores the objection; C concedes but never counters.

Q2

Someone asks a question and you're not sure of the answer. What's the most professional response?

A) Make up a confident-sounding figure on the spot.

B) "That's a good question. I don't have the exact figure, but I'll follow up."

C) Ignore it and move straight to your conclusion.

Why: honesty plus a promise to follow up keeps your credibility. Bluffing (A) and ignoring (C) lose the audience's trust.

Q3 · new

"It's not a cost; it's an investment." Which technique is this?

A) Tripling

B) Contrast

C) A rhetorical question

Why: two ideas are set against each other to sharpen the point. Tripling needs three items; a rhetorical question is a question.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (7.3)

"Research suggest..." / "The figures shows..." · "Although it is expensive, but..." · "Admittedly..., but however..." · "I will cover about..." · "In conclusion" used as the first signpost · rhetorical questions with a rising (real-question) tune · no pause at signposts · reading a script at top speed · "Any questions? No? OK, bye." · answering a question with only "Yes" or "It's a good question." and silence. Fix agreement and the double connector every time; treat the rest as delivery coaching.

Module 8 — Fluency & the Final Project: Answers

Answers to every Module 8 workbook exercise and self-check question, with the "why," acceptable alternatives, model answers for the open tasks (the dictogloss, "Just right," blunt → balanced, the debate prep sheet), the classroom-materials keys (Decode It, the sort cards, Register Switch), and the errors you can expect to hear most.

Lessons 8.1–8.3

Classes C23–C25

9 self-check items

15 exercises

MARKING PRINCIPLE

At B2, mark meaning first, then form, then range. In the listening lab (8.1), a dictation answer is correct if every word is there in its full written form. Accept contractions (I've got to, We've) but not reductions (gonna, wanna) in written answers. In 8.2, many gaps have more than one natural answer: accept any expression that does the same job ($\approx$ / 🍷 / 🍷) in the right position. In the open tasks, judge register: is the language right for the listener? In 8.3, a concede-and-counter is correct if it (1) grants something real, (2) turns with but / however / that said / still, and (3) gives a reason. American English is the model; British forms (favour, centre, neighbourhood, film, shop, cycle lanes) are acceptable when a learner uses them.

8.1 • UNDERSTANDING NATURAL SPEECH (C23)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – CAN OR CAN'T? (SCRIPT 8.1-B)

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8
can't	can	can	can't	can	can't · can	can	can't · Can

The clue is the vowel and the stress, not the t: quick /kən/ = can; long, stressed /kænt/ = can't. In 8, the question "Can you speak up?" begins with a weak /kən/ too. If most of the class gets 6 or 8 wrong, re-read them slowly and exaggerate the contrast: the double-item sentences are the hardest.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – EXPAND THE RELAXED FORM

- 1 I'm going to call her tonight.
- 2 Do you want to come with us?
- 3 I've got to finish this report. (also: I have to finish...)
- 4 It's kind of cold in here.
- 5 What are you doing this weekend?

6 Let me see. Give me a second.

7 I don't know. Ask them.

8 Did you see the game?

Wrong: 1 "I'm going call her" (the to is the whole point) · 3 "I've got finish" · 5 "What do you doing" (whatcha + -ing = what are you; whatcha + base verb = what do you: "Whatcha want?") · 7 "Ask him" ('em = them).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – FIND THE HIDDEN SOUNDS

A. 1 of · 2 to · 3 was · 4 can · 5 and · 6 t · 7 for · 8 them

B. Linking (◡) and silent letters (x):

1 turn◡it◡off → "tur-ni-toff"

2 pick◡it◡up → "pi-ki-tup"

3 an◡apple → "a-napple"

4 this◡evening → "thi-sevening"

5 far◡away → "fa-raway" (American English pronounces the r, and it links)

6 next day

7 sandwich

8 most people

9 last night

10 friendship

Accept learners who also cross out the d in sandwich and mark the n as "m" (assimilation: "sam-wich"): that is a good, advanced observation.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – MICRO-DICTATION (SCRIPT 8.1-C)

1 I was going to call you, but I ran out of time. (12)

2 Do you want a cup of tea? (7)

3 What are you going to do about it? (8)

4 I don't know. Let me think about it. (8)

5 Tell them to turn it off at the end of the day. (11)

6 We've got to leave at six, so we can't stay long. (11)

Contractions count as one word (don't, We've, can't). Also accept 6 We have got to / We have to (count changes; fine).
Most common misses: 1 was, to, of · 2 "Do you want to cup of tea" (wanna here = want a) · 3 are, to · 5 them, to, the, of · 6 "can stay long" (the can't trap).

◆ EXERCISE 5 – DICTOGLOSS (SCRIPT 8.1-D)

Original text: Hi, it's Dana from work. Listen, I was going to call you yesterday, but I ran out of time. The meeting has been moved to next Tuesday, and they want us to bring a copy of the report. I don't know about you, but I've got to finish my part tonight. Do you want to get together on Monday and check it over? We could meet at the café next to the station at around ten. Let me know what you think. Oh, and don't forget: it's Sam's last day on Friday, so we're going to take him out for lunch. Talk to you soon!

How to mark a reconstruction (it doesn't need to be word for word):

- ◆ Content (6 points): meeting moved to next Tuesday · bring a copy of the report · Dana must finish her part tonight · meet on Monday to check it · café next to the station, around ten · Sam's last day Friday, lunch.
- ◆ Grammar words restored (the lab's target): going to call · has been moved · want us to bring · a copy of the report · at the café · at around ten · take him out. Every missing one is a WF (weak form) label.
- ◆ Acceptable variations: The meeting is moved / was moved / has moved to next Tuesday (meaning OK; praise has been moved) · I have to finish · Can we meet on Monday... · about ten.
- ◆ Not accepted: reductions in the written text (gonna, wanna, dunno) · "next Thursday" (a mishearing of Tuesday: good to discuss) · "take him out to lunch" is fine, but "take out for lunch" (no him) is a WF miss.

◆ DIALOGUE, DECODE IT, SPEAKING

Reductions in the Sam & Jo dialogue: Whatcha · D'you · wanna · gotta · kinda · Lemme · gonna · 'n' · ya. Sam's first two lines in full: What are you doing this weekend? Do you want to grab a coffee?

Decode It (classroom materials set C), full forms. Card A: 1 Do you want to grab lunch? · 2 What are you going to do tonight? · 3 I've got to go to the bank. · 4 Let me know if you need a hand. · 5 Did you see the game last night? · 6 It's kind of cold. Can you close the window? Card B: 1 Give me a minute. I'm looking for my keys. · 2 Don't you want to come with us? · 3 I don't know what time it starts. · 4 Tell them I'll be there at six. · 5 We were going to call you, but we ran out of time. · 6 Would you like a cup of coffee? Any natural reply is fine ("Sure!" · "Nothing much, you?" · "No worries!").

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

You hear "I wz gonna call ya." What is the full, standard sentence?

A) I was going to call you.

B) I want to call you.

C) I will call you.

Why: wz = the weak form of was, gonna = going to, ya = you. B would be wanna; C has no will anywhere.

Q2

A speaker says a quick, unstressed /kən/ before "help." Which is most likely?

A) "I can help" (a weak, unstressed can)

B) "I can't help" (the negative)

C) "I could help" (a reduced could)

Why: quick and unstressed = can. Can't is long and stressed (/kænt/). There's no reduction of could to /kən/.

Q3 • new

You hear "I dunno. Lemme check." What did the speaker say?

A) I don't know. Let me check.

B) I do now. Let me check.

C) I didn't know. Let me check.

Why: dunno = don't know (present), and lemme = let me. B confuses the sound; C changes the tense (that would be "I didn't know").

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (8.1)

Writing reductions in answers ("I'm gonna...") · "I'm going call you" (the lost to also appears in learners' own speech and writing) · can / can't reversed · missing articles and of in the dictogloss ("bring copy of report," "a cup tea") · hearing next Tuesday as next Thursday · "I've got finish." In speech: learners who now over-reduce in formal contexts ("Gimme the report, please" to a manager). Praise the listening; remind them that full forms are always safe when speaking.

8.2 · VAGUE LANGUAGE & BEING APPROXIMATE (C24)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – INSERT THE VAGUE EXPRESSION

1 about (also around, roughly, approximately) · 2 -ish · 3 thing · 4 kind of (also sort of; a bit and a little are also natural) · 5 of · 6 something · 7 -odd (thirty-odd) · 8 take

Wrong: 1 "fifty or so" in the gap before the number (position!) · 5 "a couple minutes" is common in American speech, but the written target is a couple of · 7 "Thirty-ish" is possible for numbers, but the gap is after a round number with a hyphen: -odd is the target; accept -ish with a note.

◆ EXERCISE 2 – SOFTEN THE OVER-PRECISE SENTENCE

1 a bit (also a little) · 2 half · 3 sort of · 4 take · 5 In a way · 6 more or less

Wording may vary slightly; the softening effect is what matters. In 5, In some ways is also fine.

◆ EXERCISE 3 – NATURAL OR SLOPPY?

- 1 ☒ Natural: a casual estimate to a friend.
- 2 ☒ Dosage must be exact: Take two tablets every four hours. Do not take more than eight tablets in 24 hours.
- 3 ☒ Too casual for a manager: The report is nearly complete. I'll send it by 7 p.m.
- 4 ☒ Natural between roommates. (If you need something specific, name it.)
- 5 ☒ The landlord needs facts: The kitchen faucet is leaking. There's water under the sink.
- 6 ☒ Natural and honest. Pain is hard to measure; the approximate time helps. Then add the precise facts you know (where exactly, how bad, since when).
- 7 ☒ Sounds unprofessional in an interview: I've worked in retail for five years. (for about five years is acceptable; the problem is like... or something.)
- 8 ☒ Natural: a polite hedge, then a clear, specific request.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – JUST RIGHT (MODEL ANSWERS)

A. Robotic → natural: The trip takes about half an hour. I picked up a few things at the store. It was twelve bucks or so. There were, I don't know, twenty-ish people in line. Any version with 3+ vague expressions in the right positions is correct. Accept twelve dollars or so, around twenty people.

B. Too vague → clear (details will vary): Put the clean towels in the blue cabinet next to the washing machine. Then fold the tablecloths and put them on the top shelf. Correct if a new coworker could follow it without asking a question: real nouns, a place, an order.

◆ EXERCISE 5 – TWO VOICEMAILS, ONE STORY (SCRIPT 8.2-B)

	To Mia (friend)	To Ms. Carter (manager)
--	-----------------	-------------------------

How long the move took	about five hours, give or take	five and a half hours
What he moved	loads of boxes, furniture, and stuff like that (three trips or so)	not mentioned
When he's back at work	on Monday	Monday, October 6, at 8 a.m.
Anything else	let's do something this weekend: pizza or something	he'll make up the 4 hours by staying until 6 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday; his phone number (555-0142)

Discussion: the boxes are not the manager's business; exact times, dates and the hours he'll make up are, because they are a work commitment. With a friend, exact numbers would sound cold.

◆ DIALOGUE, SORT CARDS, REGISTER SWITCH, DESCRIBE IT NATURALLY

Alex & Priya: ≈ about thirty or so, give or take · midnight-ish · more or less · 🛒 a few things · pizza, snacks, that kind of thing · bowling or something · 🍁 kind of crowded · a bit early · sort of tired. Any one of each is correct. (more or less free can also be read as a hedge.)

Sort cards (set D): ✅ natural: 1, 3, 5, 8, 10, 12 · ❌ sloppy: 2, 4, 6, 7, 9, 11. Model fixes are printed on the cards. Accept any fix that gives the facts the listener needs (a dose and time, a price, a route, a description, a date, what happened / when / where).

Register Switch (set E), model for card A1: Friend: "Sorry I missed your party! I was kind of sick all week, fever and stuff. I'm more or less OK now." Manager: "I'm calling to let you know that I've had a fever since Tuesday night. I have a doctor's appointment on Thursday at 9:30, and I expect to be back at work on Monday, October 13. I'll bring a doctor's note." Correct if the friend version has 2+ vague expressions and the manager version has every fact with exact times and dates.

Describe It Naturally (open): 60–90 seconds with at least one ≈, one 🛒 and one 🍁, and still clear. Model: My neighborhood's pretty quiet. There are maybe forty apartments in my building, give or take. There's a little park about five minutes away, with a playground, benches, that kind of thing. The buses are a bit slow, to be honest, but there's a café that opens at seven-ish, so mornings are nice.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

A friend asks how many people came. Which reply sounds the most natural in casual speech?

A) Precisely thirty-one people attended.

B) About thirty or so, give or take.

C) Some, I don't know, whatever.

Why: B is relaxed but still useful. A is robotic and too formal for a friend. C is so vague it sounds rude or uninterested.

Q2

In which situation should you avoid vague language and be precise?

A) Writing dosage instructions on medicine

B) Telling a friend about your weekend

C) Gently disagreeing with someone

Why: dosages are safety information: vagueness could hurt someone. B and C are exactly where vague language and hedges belong.

Q3 · new

Which sentence uses vague language in a sloppy way?

A) Pass me the thingy, the remote.

B) I put the stuff with the thingy near the whatsit.

C) We talked about work and that kind of thing.

Why: B stacks three placeholders, so the listener learns nothing. In A, the placeholder is immediately explained; C uses one general phrase at the end of a list, which is natural.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (8.2)

"many stuffs" / "a lot of stuffs" · "How are you?" "More or less." (meaning "so-so") · "or so" before the number ("or so twenty people") · "thirty-odd" misunderstood as "strange" · "a couple minutes" in writing · stacked hedges that hide the message ("It's kind of sort of a bit maybe difficult") · vague language in the precise role-plays ("I'll be back Monday-ish" to a manager) · "like" as a filler in every sentence. Correct the first two every time; treat the others as register choices and discuss them.

8.3 · REVIEW PROJECT — A STRUCTURED DEBATE (C25)

◆ EXERCISE 1 – THE MODEL DEBATE (SCRIPT 8.3-A)

- 1 Public health: car emissions damage our lungs, so car-free centers would have much cleaner air. (Also: the space could become parks and bike lanes.)
- 2 Older people, people with disabilities, shift workers, and small shops that rely on deliveries.
- 3 She concedes that access matters, then counters that most plans don't ban everyone: exemptions can be arranged for people who need them, and commuters are encouraged onto public transportation.
- 4 Whether public transportation is good enough yet (in many cities, he says, it isn't).
- 5 The transition must be gradual and fair (a conditional, hedged conclusion: "It's sort of a trade-off, but a worthwhile one").

Moves: all seven are heard. The strongest argument in favor is... (Maya) · It is widely accepted that... (Maya) · Admittedly... (Tom) · That said... (Tom) · That's a fair point... However... (Maya) · Even so, we might ask whether... (Tom) · On balance, I'd argue... (Maya).

◆ EXERCISE 2 – MIXED B2 REVIEW

1 were · 2 believed (also accepted, thought, known, agreed) · 3 far · 4 checked · 5 matters · 6 does

1 was is common in informal speech (accept in speaking, mark for writing). 3 by far is the fixed phrase; by much is wrong. 6 Not only does it cost: the auxiliary comes before the subject (inversion).

◆ EXERCISE 3 – CORRECT THE MISTAKE

1 been done · 2 have stolen · 3 hearing · 4 had · 5 about (also around, roughly, almost) · 6 cheaper

5 is the Module 8 item: "a bit exactly" mixes a hedge with a precise word. Accept exactly two hours too (the learner chose precision) with a note that the target was an approximator.

◆ EXERCISE 4 – CONCEDE AND COUNTER: MATCH

1	2	3	4	5
d	e	b	a	c

Clues: 3 ends with a comma after While I accept that..., so it needs the main clause I still believe... (b). 4 That may be so for experienced staff pairs with new employees (a). 5 Even if meetings are easier in person needs most of them can be replaced... (c). 1 and 2 are full sentences, so they take the sentence-starting counters That said... (d) and However... (e).

◆ EXERCISE 5 – FROM BLUNT TO BALANCED (MODEL ANSWERS)

- 1 Admittedly, phones can be distracting at dinner, but they can also bring people together, for example, a video call with a grandparent.

- 2 While I accept that a four-day week sounds attractive, I still believe the cost to small businesses would be too high.
- 3 That may be true for some children. That said, I think a little homework helps kids build good habits.
- 4 It's true that cars cause pollution. However, many people, like shift workers, genuinely need them to get to work.

Correct if it concedes something real, turns with but / however / that said / still, and gives a reason. Remove "stupid" and "you're wrong": attack ideas, not people.

◆ DEBATE PREP SHEET, RUBRIC SELF-CHECK AND FINAL JOURNAL (OPEN)

Prep sheet: check that each argument has a reason and an example or consequence, that the team has predicted at least 2 opposing arguments with a concede-and-counter for each, and that notes are key words, not sentences. Model row (Motion 2, proposition): argument: productivity · reason: rested staff work better · example: a trial at a local company, sick days down · who: opening speaker. Model prediction: they'll say: customers need us 5 days → concede: true for some roles → counter: staggered days off; the office stays open.

Rubric self-check: no right answers; compare the learner's self-assessment with your checklist notes and discuss big differences kindly at C26. Final journal: model three sentences: For: If workplaces introduced a four-day week, staff would be far less tired. Against: Admittedly, it would suit many offices, but a hospital couldn't run that way. Conclusion: On balance, I'd argue it should be an option rather than a rule.

◆ SELF-CHECK

Q1

Which phrase best concedes a point and then counters it?

A) "While I accept that it's expensive, I still believe it's worth it."

B) "No, you're completely wrong about that."

C) "What's more, it would also save time."

Why: A grants a point (it's expensive) and then turns (I still believe...). B only contradicts; C adds a point, it doesn't concede.

Q2

A balanced argument should end with...

A) a reasoned conclusion that weighs both sides and takes a position.

B) no opinion at all, to stay perfectly neutral.

C) a repeat of only the arguments in favor.

Why: "balanced" means you weighed both sides fairly, not that you have no conclusion. In a debate this is the summary speaker's job ("Weighing it all up...").

Q3 · new

In a formal debate, what does the rebuttal speaker mainly do?

A) introduces the motion and explains the rules

B) answers the other team's arguments, conceding what is fair and countering it

C) counts the votes at the end

Why: A is the chair's job; C is the timekeeper's. The rebuttal must respond to what the other side actually said, which is why listening (C23) matters so much.

ERRORS YOU WILL HEAR MOST (8.3)

"I am agree / I'm not agree" · "If we will ban phones, families will talk more" (a real-conditional form where the speaker means a hypothetical: If we banned..., ...would...) · "Not only it costs more, but..." (no inversion) · "It is widely believe that..." (missing -d) · "more cheaper," "the most best" · "On the other side,..." for On the other hand · "Actually" meaning "currently" · "discuss about" · "In my opinion, I think...". In the debate itself, the biggest non-grammar error is a rebuttal that ignores the other side and reads a prepared speech. Praise every real response, even an imperfect one.
